FELSTEAD, with betting 33-to-1 against him, won the derby. Horses, more fortunate than men, can inherit a father's qualities. Felstead's father, Spion Kop, also won the derby.

RICH fathers, ask yourselves what would have happened had Spion Kop left his winnings to his son, to squander as he chose. Would Felstead have won any races?

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., tells Fisk University students that merely going to college doesn't necessarily mean getting an education. It may mean only "forming habits of indolence, acquiring an unwarranted sense of superiority, or becoming dissatisfied with circumstances and environment in which one's lot is cast."

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S definition of what education ought NOT to do should be posted up in every college. It ought not to cram the mind with dates, facts, figures, produce shrewd, money-seeking lawyers, turn out doctors that reckon success in dollars, or "fit men for a business life that is sharp, slick, shady."

MR. S., who died in New York yesterday, had $10,000,000 a few years ago. When he landed in New York, 20 years ago, Mr. S. had only 28 cents. He died bankrupt, assets nil.

Yes, Mr. S. speculated. Those who think they can win at gambling are mistaken. Bull market or Bear market, good times or bad, in the end they lose.

THE mechanical man, or "talking robot," has been financed $25,000,000 worth.

Manufactured in thousands, he will be used as a salesman, mechanically uttering certain words, handing out cigarets, etc.

You may say, "but he cannot THINK, how can he be a salesman?"

He can be THAT kind of a salesman, and it's a numerous kind.

IN this age of sudden changes, you can't be sure what a little daughter in the cradle will do when she gets out and develops ideas.

In Ohio, 50 years ago, an earnest young clerk named Phipps worked all day in a hardware store, then walked eight miles and back to keep books for a blacksmith. Phipps, the blacksmith, and Young Andrew Carnegie went into the iron business together.

PHIPPS accumulated millions, and his daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Frederick Guest, wife of the former British air minister, uses some of her money to finance Miss Earhart's flying trip across the Atlantic.

GIRLS generally spend money accumulated by rich fathers more wisely than boys spend it. This confirms Galton's statement in his book on heredity, that the father's genius is inherited by the daughter.

AUSTRALIA has about the population of New York City, 6,000,000. In flyi- genius, Australia's 6,000,000 leaves New York's 6,000,000 far behind.

Five of the world's greatest fliers, Sir Ross Smith, Sir George Wilkins, Harold Bert Hinkler, Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, are Australians. One of our fliers beats them all, but he doesn't come from New York City.

GOOD FLIERS are important to Australia, living in the shadow of 70,000,000 Japanese and 400,000,000 Chinese.

Six million people with the right flying equipment would be more powerful than 100,000,000 without it.

WISCONSIN FISH, looking up through the water at the President, will see the only man in the world who actually knows NOW the next Republican candidate's name.

If President Coolidge wanted the nomination, it would be his. He has told the country how he feels about that.

If he wants Secretary Hoover nominated, Secretary Hoover will have it.

If he doesn't want Secretary Hoover, it will be difficult for the Secretary, with all his popularity.

DETROIT, June 7.—Paul Jaworski, who has been at liberty since shooting his way out of the Allegheny County Jail in Pittsburgh, more than a year ago, was being sought today for the $25,000 payroll holdup of the Detroit News, in which three persons were wounded.

Jaworski is known to have been in Detroit most of the time since he escaped from prison in Pennsylvania, where he faced the electric chair.

John Vasbinder, who escaped with Jaworski, also is being hunted.

Bush Ends Gooch Rumor

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 7.—The Pirates are straining at the leash as they prepare for the belated opening of the four-game series with the Boston Braves, scheduled for the Wigwam this afternoon. The duel was to have got under way yesterday, but rain interfered for the third successive day and the Buccos and Braves were forced to remain idle.

Carmen Hill remains as the Pirate hurling selection, with Bob Smith primed to pitch for Boston.

Manager Bush of the Pirates has spiked the rumor that the Pirates were planning a deal that would bring Dick Burrus, Boston infielder, to the Bucs for Johnny Gooch, catcher.

2 Girl Ocean Fliers Fail

TWO girl fliers, each eager to be the first to cross the Atlantic Ocean by airplane, today made attempts to get away but failed. Unfavorable weather thwarted both efforts.

The first aviatrix, Mabel Boll, otherwise known as the "Queen of Diamonds," did make a hop-off from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and sped north along the coast. But she encountered choppy weather and a murky fog and, with her air companions, for several hours was lost. Back she turned to New York.

Meanwhile, her rival for honors, Amerlia Earhart, had thrice attempted to get away from Trepassey, Newfoundland. Each time rough harbor waters, churned by a shifting wind, prevented the take-off of the heavily-laden plane, Friendship.

Mabel Boll Hops Off On Flight—Fog Turns Plane Back.

International News Service.

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., June 7.—(INS.)—The trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia, in which Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," and three male companions started out early today on the first leg of a proposed flight to Rome, returned to the field here shortly after noon.

It was stated that unfavorable weather along the route to Old Orchard, Me., the first stop on the proposed flight, had caused the return.

The plane returned after it had been six hours in the air, during

Miss Earhart Foiled In Three Attempts For Europe Start.

International News Service.

TREPASSEY, Newfoundland, June 7.—The proposed trans-Atlantic flight of the monoplane Friendship was temporarily postponed early this afternoon, after three unsuccessful attempts had been made to get into the air.

The combination of a light wind, which ruffled the waters of Trepassey harbor, and the heavy fuel load of the plane, prevented the takeoff.

The fliers, Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon, were keenly disappointed at their failure to get under way immediately. They stated that the weather was propitious for a flight across the Atlantic, if they once could get their heavy tri-motored plane into the air, but explained that they needed smooth water for a take-off.

WAIT WEATHER

After three attempts, they finally gave up for the time being and returned disconsolate to their quarters to await the hoped for quieting of the harbor.

All three are eager to start as soon as possible on their venture, but they announced that they will not be rushed by Miss Mabel Boll's decision to try to beat them across in the trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia.

NEWSPAPER MAKING FILMED

"The Making of a Newspaper," a thrilling two-reel motion picture, will be shown for the first time to the Pittsburgh public next Monday. It will appear at the Grand Theater as a part of a gala motion picture and stage program, arranged by the Grand Theater executives to fittingly introduce the newspaper picture.

Besides its value as an educational film, the newspaper picture will take the public, in whose lives the daily newspaper is an important factor, through the most interesting phases of news gathering, as exemplified by the Hearst newspapers of America.

Appropriately, one of the best feature films of the year will be shown as the spot item on the Grand's program. It will be "Hangman's House," screened from the engaging novel of the same name, by the Irish author, Donn Byrne. Victor McLaglen, hero in "What Price Glory," "Mother Machree" and other celebrated pictures, and June Collyer, lovely leading lady, play two of the big roles.

Following the new policy at the Grand, there will be a stage attraction, and an Our Gang Comedy. All in all, the program will be one of unusual variety.

"The Making of a Newspaper," produced and screened on the scene and in the studios of International Newsreel, occupied several years. It is based on an actual news event of big importance—one that the public will easily recognize and identify. Briefly, but dramatically, the sequence of newspaper making is shown at the Grand, starting Monday.

THAW, HELD ON SHIP, ASKS U. S. HELP

International News Service.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 7.—Smoking a thick black cigar, Harry Kendall Thaw, former "play boy of Broadway," paced the deck of the Aquitania today impatiently awaiting an answer to telegrams he had sent in an effort to have the ban of the British immigration authorities lifted.

Thaw frequently walked to the rail and looked longingly at the row of dingy and barn-like warehouses and pier sheds along the water front.

It is understood that he sent off a batch of messages protesting against the decision of the British home office not to allow him to land on English soil. Among those to whom Thaw sent telegrams and cablegrams, it was reported, were Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of the Treasury

RUM QUIZ IS GIVEN RECORDS

"We are having prepared the records asked for by the government and will turn over certified copies of any cases that may be sought," City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt announced today, ending a controversy over police records for use of the federal grand jury in the probe into the alleged rum ring.

The first batch of records, consisting of a dozen certified copies of transcripts from magistrate's dockets, said to be from Franks-town Avenue station, arrived at the Federal Building shortly before noon today and were taken into the grand jury room. All others asked for will be delivered by tomorrow afternoon, Waldschmidt said.

"We will not turn over magistrates' transcript dockets unless these are taken before the grand jury by a representative of my office, but we are willing to allow anyone from the federal attorney's or the prohibition offices to examine any city records at police stations, or, if preferred, we will bring these to the Federal Building," said Waldschmidt.

GOVERNMENT SATISFIED

This solution was pronounced acceptable by government attorneys. They have asked for certified records in about 30 specific prohibition cases.

A long wrangle ensued between city and Federal counsel last night following an order by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court yesterday subpenaing records of magistrates and police inspectors. The second time they had clashed over the grand jury's investigation of the alleged liquor conspiracy.

FAULKNER REFUSES

Inspector Charles Faulkner becomes the center of the controversy when he refused to allow federal attaches to take into the grand jury room records he had taken to the Federal Building, unless he accompanied them. Faulkner called in Attorney Edward G. Coll, as his private counsel. Coll professed to have no objection to giving over the police and magistrates' records.

Judge Schoonmaker declined to intervene in the dispute and after a prolonged argument, a settlement on the lines of Waldschmidt's statement was arrived at.

Slain, Put in Ditch

Found lying in a ditch along the Stoops Ferry road between Glen Willard and Coraopolis, the body of an unidentified man, with two bullet holes in his head, was picked up at 8 o'clock this morning by a crew of workmen. He had been dead for about six hours, according to morgue attaches.

Cards in the man's pockets bore the name of Ernest W. Swanson, a state policeman, who had been attached to the Moon Run station up until about three weeks ago. Swanson now is on duty at Reading. The trooper lost his pocketbook last fall and today's murder victim is believed to have found it.

A deposit slip of the Union National Bank, Connellsville, bore the name of Nick Grenaldo. Officers of the bank, communicated with by telephone, said Grenaldo was known to them and that the description of the slain man did not tally with Grenaldo.

The man wore three pairs of trousers and his general appearance was unkempt.

County detectives are of the opinion that he was slain by gangsters. Robbery was not the motive, $25 having been found on him.

FLY PAPER TRAPS CHICKS

Trapped on sticky fly paper, four baby-chicks struggled until exhausted in the window of a pet shop at 101 Smithfield street, last night. M. Malorana, proprietor of the shop, whom E. M. Smith, acting superintendent of the Humane Society, said refused to leave his West View home to free the chicks, later was arrested and spent a portion of the night in jail.

Smith alleges that when Malorana refused to open the store and free the chicks, a warrant charging cruelty was obtained from Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon. Malorana was taken from his home to the store, where the chicks, fast to the fly paper, were removed from the window and chloroformed. Then Malorana was taken to jail. Today he furnished bond and was released. A hearing has been set for Friday afternoon.

EXPECTS ADMISSION

"I am confident of being released by Saturday," said Thaw. "If I am delayed much longer it will be the worse for Joynson-Hicks (Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks), who apparently doesn't care two hoots about my being stranded."

Thaw did not go to bed until midnight. He spent the evening pacing the deck of the Aquitania—his involuntary but luxurious "prison"—with a Cunard line detective.

"Do you play bridge?" asked Thaw.

"Sorry, but I don't know the game," replied the detective.

"Now, that's too bad," said Thaw. "We might have passed a few hours very pleasantly."

CAN ENTER FRANCE

LONDON, June 7.—A visa has been obtained for Harry Thaw to enter France, and he will go there if British authorities persist in their refusal to permit him to land at Southampton, E. M. Pendleton, who came here to take up Thaw's case, said today.

"I cabled Washington yesterday, and called at the American embassy today," Pendleton said. "I was told that nothing could be done until the embassy heard from Washington, probably later today.

"If Thaw is refused admission Thaw and I will continue on to France in the Aquitania.

"I do not know what to make of it all. It looks to me like a reprisan for the Cathcart affair."

(Countess Cathcart, for a time, was denied admission to the United States, though never accused of any crime, because Ellis Island (N. Y.) immigration officials held her previous elopement with the Earl of Craven—also married—to be evidence of "moral turpitude.")

Pendleton has known Thaw for five or six years.

Thaw Case Not Presented to State Dept.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—The denial of entry of Harry K. Thaw into England by the British authorities had not been referred today to the State Department. Secretary Kellogg said that no information had reached him about the action and remarked that it was an affair for the British authorities.

"We keep out of this country those we do not want to come in," Kellogg said adding that "the British apparently do likewise."

OPPONENTS ORGANIZE TO DEFEAT HOOVER

KANSAS CITY, June 7.—(AP.)—The field of opponents to Herbert Hoover completed an organization here today in an effort to prevent him from being nominated in the Republican National Convention next week.

L. L. Emmerson, Republican nominee for Governor of Illinois and a Lowden man, is the generalissimo of the entire anti-Hoover organization.

The combine and selection of Emmerson was effected at a series of meetings this morning in which supporters of Lowden, Watson and Curtis participated.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, also a Lowden worker, was made chairman of the publicity committee with instructions to lose no time in placing the aims of the combination before the delegates.

With the perfection of the organization the combined field decided also to carry before the credentials committee the fight it lost before the Republican National Committee when contests were brought for seats on the convention floor. Hoover forces picked up more than 60 pledged votes in the contests, defeating uninstructed or hostile delegations.

Former Gov. Hyde, of Missouri, has been retained by the combine to press the fight against the national committee's decisions before the credentials committee. It is expected he will round up a corps of assistants to aid him in carrying the fight to the last ditch.

The series of meetings, most of which were held in Watson headquarters, had their inspiration in the generally accepted belief among Hoover opponents that unless he could be stopped and stopped quickly the nomination would go to him.

The opposition contends that all it needs to do is to prevent the cabinet member's nomination on the first few ballots and then many of his delegates would begin to forsake him. Hoover people, however, claim that their man's support is of the kind that sticks.

Clarence F. Buck, Lowden manager, will continue in that capacity but the general direction of the anti-Hoover movement will go to Emmerson.

2 WAR HEROINES HONORED HERE

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Two hundred fifty-six days under enemy fire. Twice gassed and twice decorated by the American Army. Just how would you like to be Irene McIntyre Walbridge—with a war record like that?

Mrs. Walbridge, here under the auspices of the Salvation Army, is the national president of the American Legion Auxiliary. She will attend a dinner given in her honor at the William Penn tonight. With her is Mrs. William C. Speakman, national vice president. And they are two as charming women as ever "stepped inside of four shoes."

When you see Mrs. Walbridge, black-haired, brown-eyed and wholesomely handsome, you find it easy to believe that she is an outstanding heroine of the World War and that one of her citations reads:

"Under fire of high explosives and gas she established and conducted huts that were noted for their good cheer and hospitality. Her courage and devotion to her voluntary work was a splendid inspiration to the troops."

Tonight the heroine will meet a Pittsburgh hero, Col. Ward, for the first time since the Armistice. They watched the opening of the Argonne offensive together. That will be a meeting!

Mrs. Speakman, of Wilmington, Del., took an ambulance to France with her husband, a doctor, in 1915, and they worked side by side aiding the wounded. The ambulance is no more. A shell ended its career after America entered the war.

Mrs. Walbridge will tell of the work of the 300,000 women of the Legion auxiliary tonight.

part of which time it was lost in the fog.

Miss Boll expressed disappointment that the first short leg of the long journey should have been unsuccessful but said that this would have no effect on her determination to go through with the ocean flight. She said that if weather conditions improved another takeoff for Old Orchard would be made this afternoon.

The Columbia, loaned to Miss Boll for her trans-Atlantic flight by Charles A. Levine, who flew in it to Germany with Clarence Chamberlin last summer, hopped off from Roosevelt Field at 6:14 o'clock daylight time this morning. When it failed to arrive at Old Orchard, anxiety began to be felt. Almost exactly six hours after the takeoff the silver monoplane suddenly appeared once more over the Long Island fields and dropped out of the sky to a graceful landing.

Miss Boll, who hopes to be the first woman to fly across the ocean, was accompanied on today's flight by Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, who will be co-pilots on the ocean flight, and Andrew Surini, a mechanic.

WATCHMAN INJURED IN FLOTILLA HOLDUP

Two armed robbers early today boarded the Flotilla Club boat in the Monongahela River at the foot of Wood street, struck down the night watchman, robbed him and escaped. The watchman, Frank Baffey, 51, is in the Allegheny General Hospital in a critical condition. His skull is fractured.

Shortly after 5 o'clock today police, called to the club, found Baffey in the kitchen, dazed. He had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument and robbed of $27. He told police he had unexpectedly confronted the robbers as they were entering the kitchen of the cabaret, and had been knocked unconscious.

The robbers apparently had just entered the club when they were surprised by Baffey. They fled before attempting to open a safe on a balcony.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 7.—(AP.)—Reports from the sealer Hobby indicated that the first airplane flight in search of the missing dirigible Italia has proven unsuccessful.

Lieut. Luetzow Holm, Norwegian aviator, flew from Biscaya Hook, the west point of the entrance to Broad Bay, a shallow indentation on the north coast of West Spitzbergen, around the island, following the coastline. Nothing was seen of the Italia, however, and the presumption is the search must be conducted farther east.

A heavy fog is believed to have prevented further flying, although a base had been established at Grey Point, between Wood and Widge bays. With the fog was a heavy northwest wind which would have made flying dangerous. Efforts to establish a base at Virgo Bay and Danish Island, failed on account of ice.

Capt. Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, Norway, with his plane, is expected to arrive here today.

The Hobby previously had reported it explored the district between Armsterdam Island and Wijde Fjord without finding any trace of the airship.

The Italian Alpinists who were landed at Amsterdam Island were also unsuccessful in their quest.

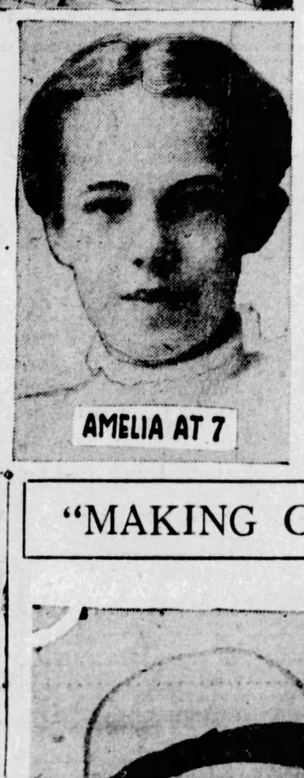
Rogers Off Again After 2 Spills In Airplane

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 7.—(INS)—Will Rogers, nationally known humorist, was none the worse today for his second airplane accident in one day. Rogers hopped off from here this morning en route to Omaha.

The plane he was flying in from Los Angeles sustained a slight accident yesterday while making a landing at Cherokee, Wyo., west of here. One of the wheels was broken as it sunk into a gopher hole. Rogers was uninjured.

Another plane in which Rogers was a passenger turned over while attempting to land in Las Vegas, Nev., early yesterday.

"I just started for the Republican convention at Kansas City but landed on my head at Las Vegas," said Rogers, emerging from the crash. "Serves me right for not going to the Democratic convention instead. I want to make it clear that Pilot Kelly is not to blame for this little accident."



"LADY LINDY"

"Lady Lindy," the aviatrix ready at Trepassey, N. Heres' sister in her schoolroom and mother at home. Amelia Earhart today—she's about 30—has a long experience as a pilot. In fact, she's been flyin' since 1923 in her own right, for that's when she was granted a license. Today, though she's an instructor in a university and a Boston social worker and society figure, she's still representative of modern, carefree youth. If you think she doesn't look like Lindbergh, glance at the photograph just above. Which is which? Well, sir, that's Amelia on your left!

AMERICANS SAFE

PEKING, June 7.—(AP.)—With travel impracticable, Americans remained in Peking today and the legation had no intention of evacuating them to other points which some might consider safer.

Nationalist flags were flying, signalizing the change of the regime from the dictatorship of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin to the Kuomintang. There was no disorder and evacuation of Americans was regarded as unnecessary.

Peking was isolated by railway, no trains were running to Tientsin and for three days there have been no mails from the outside.

To exclude deserters from the Chinese armies all city gates except one were closed. The automobile route to Tientsin was regarded as risky, since nondescript soldiers were roaming the countryside without leaders.

CHANG RECOVERING

If Japanese reports from Mukden were to be relied upon, Chang Tso-lin, injured in a bomb outrage when he fled there, was alive and improving. The official Japanese report stated that although the former Northern dictator's condition was showing signs of improvement his Chinese physician would not permit visitors.

A statement issued by attending physicians indicated that Chang's injuries were more extensive than reported at first. His bruised arm was causing pain, and contusions on the head and leg were healing. Chang himself was cheerful.

Mukden has been under martial law since the morning of June 4 when Chang's train was bombed.

BOTTLES HALT DANCERS AT WASHINGTON, PA.

MARATHON OFF AFTER COUNTY INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 7.—When authorities after investigation announced that Washington's first dance marathon had developed into a booze marathon so far as some spectators, at least, were concerned, the promoters yesterday decided to call off the distance dance.

The district attorney's office said hundreds of empty whisky bottles cluttered the hall, it was said.

District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal said the investigation still was incomplete.

The promoters, Robert E. Fee, of Uniontown, and Louis Gessner, of Washington, Pa., when informed of conditions, immediately called off the dance. A draw was called between the 12 couples still remaining on the floor after the 65-hour grind.

Washington ministers, prior to the start of the dance, had asked city authorities to stop the marathon.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., June 7.—Eighty hours of continuous dancing found 16 couples still able to navigate in the Allegheny Valley dance marathon in the Nu-Ken Gardens this morning. Three couples meandered off into dreamland during the night, in preference to cash and fame.

Fred W. Moesta and Winifred Gray, the youthful pair from New Kensington, cashed out after performing for 71 hours and 20 minutes. Five hours later, with a mark of 76 hours and 20 minutes team No. 13, Richard Miller, Springdale, and Jackie Dayton, New Kensington, checked out and were followed an hour later by a Sharpsburg pair, William Myers and Laura Ettmyer.

Al Bonach and his dance partner, Cora Deane, who have never been danced down, appeared in an exhibition dance last night. This afternoon the Junior Fashion Queen of the Valley will be selected and the Senior Queen will be drawn in the evening.

COUNTY VALUED AT 81 MILLIONS

An inventory of county property, completed yesterday by County Controller Robert G. Woodside, shows a valuation of of $81,187,937.74. The county, according to the controller's report, owns 6,635.54 acres of land. A summary of county property follows:

Buildings	$12,195,920.00
Land	15,351,054.16
Furnishings	1,085,452.04
Machinery	1,073,104.47
Live stock	86,745.75
Roads	19,958,087.32
Bridges and tunnels	31,380,110.00
Automobiles	14,536.00
Trucks	62,925.00

Controller Woodside said that with the exception of land and live stock all other items were compiled after deductions were made for depreciation. The compilation does not include live stock in county parks, which includes buffalo, deer, horses and cattle.

DRIVER FREED IN DEATH OF WOMAN

In a sealed verdict opened in Criminal Court today George Minick, 21, of Glenfield, was found not guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Miss Etta O. Rosensteel, of Sewickley, for many years cashier in the Register of Wills' office. Miss Rosensteel died on August 3 of injuries suffered when she was struck by Minick's auto near her home. The jury ordered Minick to pay the costs.

Miss Sylvia Rosensteel, a sister, testified that both were about to step up to the sidewalk when the car struck them. The witness said she was hurled 27 feet and severely injured. Other testimony was that the car was traveling rapidly. The defendant said he was blinded by lights of another car; that he was traveling about 10 miles an hour and did not see the sisters.

SLEUTHS ACT AS PAY GUARDS

As a measure of precaution, city detectives have been made available as payroll guards. Instead of trailing payroll bandits after robberies have been committed, the detectives, whenever requested, will accompany corporation employes transporting payrolls and remain until the money has been distributed.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd announced the inauguration of the new system yesterday after requests for payroll protection had been provided for several large firms. Fifteen detectives, all heavily armed, accompanied payrolls yesterday, Inspector Boyd announced.

The identity of men on such detail will be known only to Inspector Boyd and Lieut. Thomas Malone in order that large payroll movements may be kept as nearly secret as possible.

His skull is fractured, physicians say. Police are holding Peter Selepak of 1221 Berry street.

RAIN DELAYS PAGEANT

Rainy weather the last few days has resulted in the postponement of Mt. Lebanon's seventh annual May Day festival and historical pageant until next Monday and Tuesday. The pageant was scheduled to begin tonight. The first two performances will be given by more than 1,300 children of the Washington and Lincoln public schools. The pageant will be presented on the grounds of the Washington School, Washington road.

A TRUE BLESSING

For All Nervous and Ailing

When the good Jesuit Fathers first come to Paraguay, centuries ago, they found the native Indians drinking "Mate" to conserve their strength and to restore the sick to health.

Other tribes would travel hundreds of miles to Paraguay to get "Mate" to enjoy its blessings. Under the skillful hands of Jesuit Fathers immense Mate plantations were laid out which furnish us with—"JOYZ Yerba MATE"—today. It is simply made like tea in a teapot.

During the Great War—"JOYZ Yerba MATE"—was used for shell-shocked soldiers and other convalescents. Now used in European hospitals for Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. Just a cup or two of this soothing drink brings a glow of youthful health and feelings of deep contentment. It calms the tired nerves and you sleep like a child. The ideal daily drink for everybody. "JOYZ Yerba MATE" is not a patent medicine but is today the National Drink of the Argentine and consumed by twenty-five million people throughout South America. Strongly endorsed by Doctors, Scientists, Pasteur Institute, Press and Clergy. ASK FOR A LARGE TIN OF "JOYZ YERBA MATE." For sale at:

Annually many women's clubs contribute to this worthy cause, but the first on this year's list is the Girls' Auxiliary to the Women's Club of Ingram. The auxiliary is one of the newer of these younger women's units which are to carry on the club ideals founded by the seniors. OLIVER BLDG. VOTES FOR HOOVER

A straw vote taken by The Sun-Telegraph in the Henry W. Oliver Building by personal office-to-office canvass disclosed that 367 persons expect to vote for Hoover and 167 for Smith. Notwithstanding that the voters were asked to designate their choice as between Hoover and Smith, 24 insisted on recording their vote as for Coolidge. Of those who indicated how they voted four years ago 326 were for Coolidge and 41 for Davis.

The Oliver Building vote is not only that of business and professional men, but also of numerous young women employed as stenographers and telephone operators.

Ballots clipped from The Sun-Telegraph and mailed total 1,758 for Smith and 350 for Hoover. Of those who mailed their ballots 1,359 voted for Coolidge at the last election and 225 for Davis.

The great majority of those approached in the personal canvass were glad to co-operate in this effort to determine the relative strength of Hoover and Smith in the Pittsburgh district. Some were indifferent and a few suspicious. A few offices were omitted from the canvass because permission to approach the workers was withheld by the office head.

A chorus of 200 pupils from Fifth Avenue, Schenley, Peabody and Westinghouse High schools will sing selections from the "Peasant Cantata." The proceeds of the festival are to maintain the combined high school orchestra and to promote similar festivals.

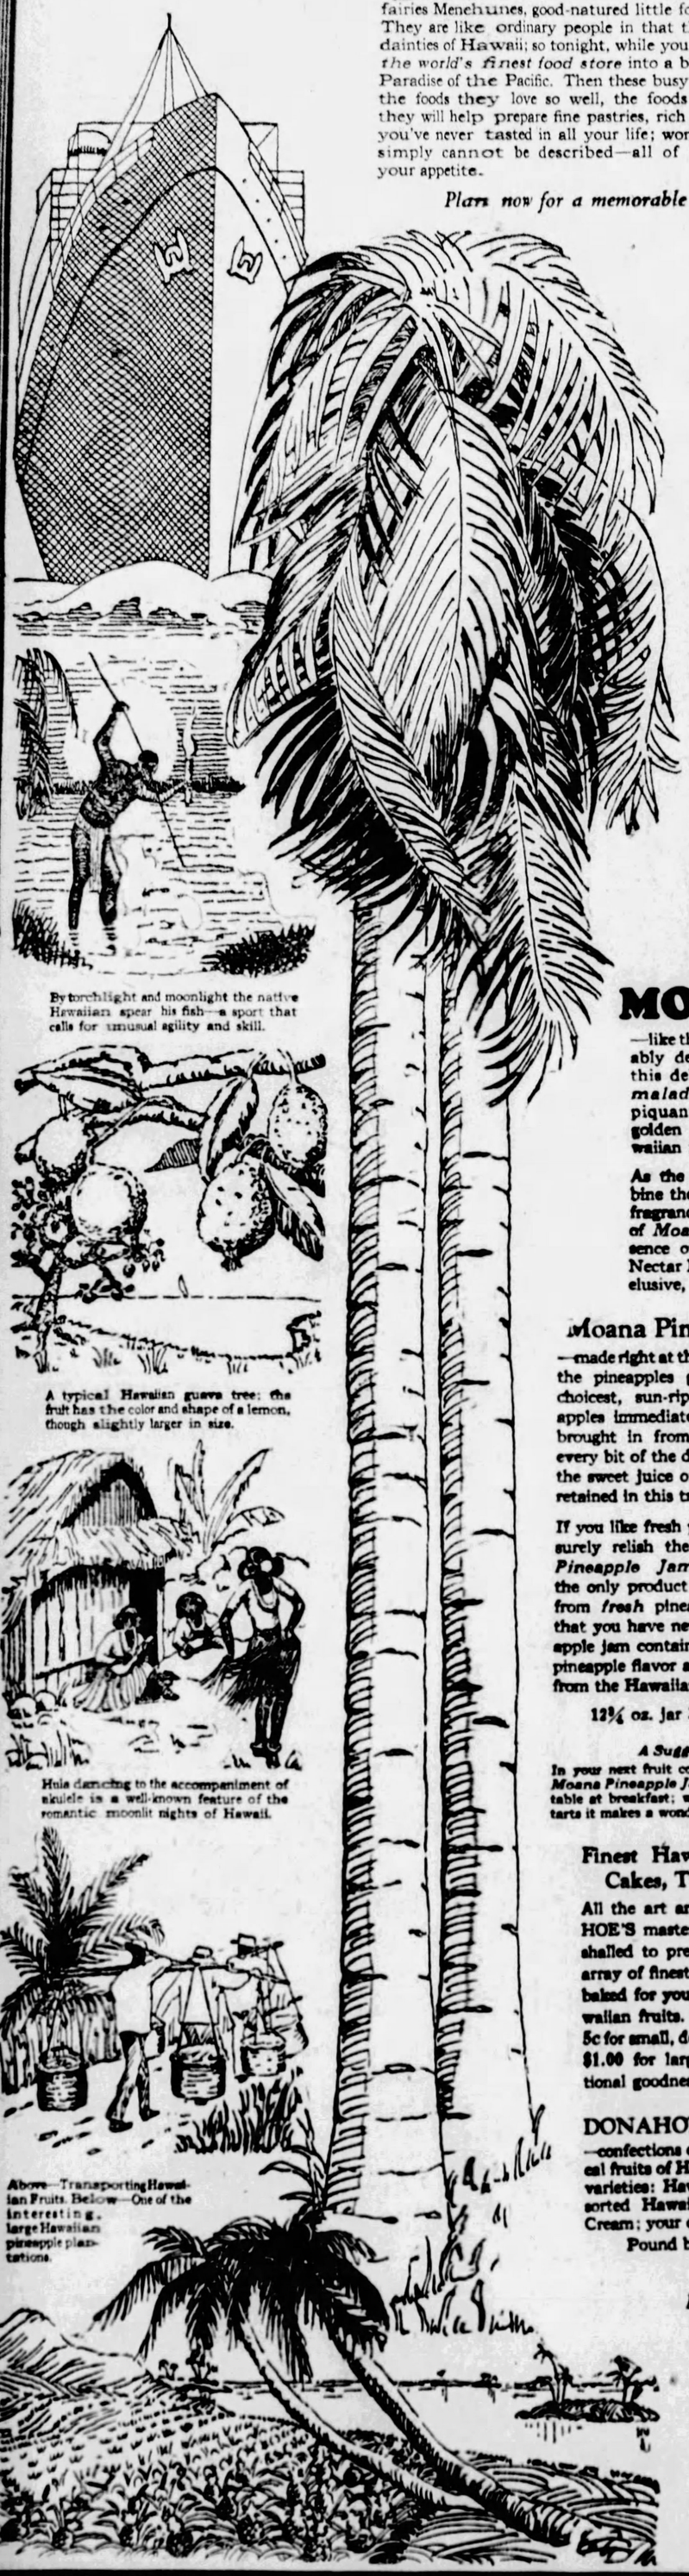
Bringing Hawaii to DONAHOE'S

Hawaiian Delicacies, Hawaiian Entertainers, from the Romantic "Paradise of the Pacific"

TONIGHT when you are in the realm of King Morpheus, dreaming beautiful dreams, Hawaiian fairies will be busy at DONAHOE'S. Hawaiians call these fairies Menehunes, good-natured little folk who like to help people at hard tasks. They are like ordinary people in that they like to eat, especially the toothsome dainties of Hawaii; so tonight, while you sleep, the Menehunes first will transform the world's finest food store into a bower of beauty, reminiscent of Hawaii—Paradise of the Pacific. Then these busy little fairies will help unpack and display the foods they love so well, the foods they want you to know. Last of all they will help prepare fine pastries, rich pies, cooling ices and ice creams such as you've never tasted in all your life; wonderful candies and jams and jellies that simply cannot be described—all of them Hawaiian delicacies to delight your appetite.

TOMORROW, when you visit DONAHOE'S Fifth Avenue Store, you will be amazed to see what the fairies have wrought. You will stroll down the Avenue of Royal Palms, an avenue typical of the beautiful throughfares in Honolulu. The decorations alone will be worth coming miles to see! Along this Avenue of Royal Palms there will be demonstrations of Hawaii's finest food products, foods that are now for the first time available in marketable quantities. How Hawaiian Pineapple-Nibs are dipped in cream will be shown at the Candy Departments; you may taste the delicious Hawaiian Guava Jelly in combination with Philadelphia Cream Cheese and after that you may enjoy a sample of the wonderfully fragrant Hawaiian Malolo "After-dinner" Coffee. And when it is lunch time you may choose from a profusion of Hawaiian salads and Hawaiian specialities in our Second Floor Cafeteria.

Plan now for a memorable day—a visit to Pittsburgh's Hawaiian Avenue of Royal Palms in DONAHOE'S Fifth Avenue Store



By torchlight and moonlight the native Hawaiian spear his fish—a sport that calls for unusual agility and skill.

A typical Hawaiian guava tree: the fruit has the color and shape of a lemon, though slightly larger in size.

Hula dancing to the accompaniment of ukulele is a well-known feature of the romantic moonlit nights of Hawaii.

Will be in DONAHOE'S Fifth Avenue Store Friday and Saturday

Natives untaught in music yet masters of the art which portrays better than paint on canvas or words on paper the poignant pathos, the plaintive pleading, the pulsating passion of a primitive people. Come, hear, be enchanted by the melodies that tell of the joy of living—melodies that will haunt your memory for many a day—melodies first heard under the Southern Cross in far-off Hawaii, the Land of Eternal Spring.

Every day the music of the Moana Hawaiian Entertainers will be broadcast. Look for our advertisement—we will tell you when to tune in on KDKA.

Among the Hawaiian Preserves Is

MOANA NECTAR MARMALADE

—like the Nectar of the gods. Indescribably delicious! Everyone who tastes this delectable Moana Nectar Marmalade is instantly won by the piquant yet mellow flavor of the golden papayas and the native Hawaiian fragrant ginger.

As the great French perfumers combine the essence of flowers, producing fragrance ambrosial; so the originators of Moana preserves combine the essence of tropical Hawaiian fruits in Nectar Marmalade, producing a flavor elusive, exotic, unutterably delightful.

—beneficial to the health of old and young. The Hawaiian golden papaya, similar in size and shape to a cantaloupe, possesses wonderful dietetic properties, such as papain which is an aid to digestion.

A suggestion: Try Moana Nectar Marmalade on toast at breakfast or tea, or use it in a tapioca or custard pudding, or over ice cream as a sundae; it makes a delicious filling for tarts or layer cakes.

12¾ oz. jar 35c; 3 for $1

Moana Pineapple Jam

—made right at the plantation where the pineapples grow; made from choicest, sun-ripened fresh pineapples immediately after they are brought in from the fields. Thus every bit of the delicious flavor and the sweet juice of the fresh fruit is retained in this tropical jam.

If you like fresh pineapple you will surely relish the luscious Moana Pineapple Jam, because it is the only product of its kind made from fresh pineapples. We know that you have never tasted a pineapple jam containing so much true pineapple flavor as this one—direct from the Hawaiian Islands.

12¾ oz. jar 35c; 3 for $1

A Suggestion:

In your next fruit cocktail use a dash of Moana Pineapple Jam, or have it on the table at breakfast; when used in pies or tarts it makes a wonderful dessert.

Poha Berry Jam

—unique, delectable jam—zestfully tart and temptingly appetizing; made from the famous Hawaiian Poha Berries, which grow on low bushes on the rim of Kilauea Volcano.

The discerning hostess will appreciate that the original flavor of Poha Berry Jam will be a treat to her guests.

12¾ oz. jar 40c; 3 for $1.15

A Suggestion:

Try Moana Poha Berry Jam as a filling for pies, layer cakes or tarts. After you have iced your cake, use a dash of Poha Berry Jam as a finishing touch. When serving ice cream, make a Poha Berry sundae.

Guava Jelly and Jam

—the Moana brand includes two other Hawaiian delicacies—the world famous Guava Jelly and Jam, prepared from the intriguing and appetizing Hawaiian Guava. In appearance this fruit resembles a lemon, and it grows much like one. The inside of the ripe Guava is a salmon pink but when it is cooked it turns into a rich, deep red color.

Moana Guava Jelly has a richness, a novelty of flavor—a taste all its own. Guava Jam, containing all the goodness of the whole guava is surprisingly good.

12¾ oz. jar 35c; 3 for $1

A Suggestion:

Try a Hawaiian sherbet made with equal parts of Moana Guava Jelly and Jam; serve Guava Jelly with Philadelphia Cream or Cottage Cheese on crackers for a most delicious hors d'oeuvres; a wonderful conserve for hot or cold meat or fowl; an unequalled spread for toast or crackers.

Finest Hawaiian Pastries, Cakes, Tarts and Pies

All the art and skill of DONAHOE'S master bakers was marshalled to prepare the tempting array of finest Hawaiian pastries baked for you with Moana Hawaiian fruits. Prices range from 5c for small, decorated pastries to $1.00 for large cakes of exceptional goodness.

MALOLO—The Hawaiian "Afterdinner" Coffee

Those who have visited Hawaii and have tasted Hawaiian coffee know that Hawaiian Kona Coffee, packed under the Malolo label, is so rich, so abundant in aroma that it has a rare appeal to "after dinner" coffee drinkers. It makes a heavy brew with a distinctive flavor. Coffee "testers" proclaim it the richest coffee grown—sealed in tin. Pound can 75c.

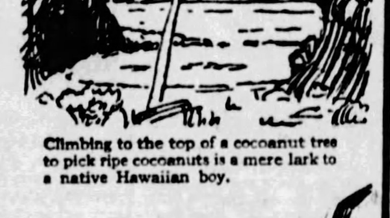
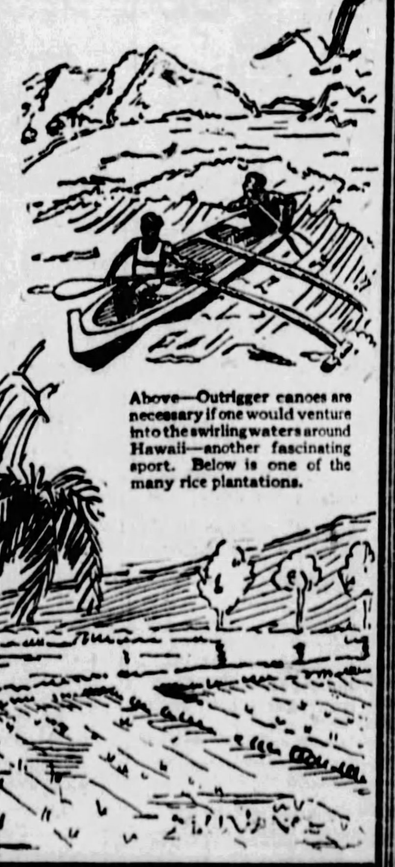
Pineapple Ice Cream mixed with Whipped Cream, Topped with Guava Jelly.



The Hawaiian's most thrilling sport is surf-board riding—requires an aquatic skill rarely acquired by others.

Papayas, melons that grow on trees in Hawaii. From the papayas is made Nectar Marmalade.



Climbing to the top of a cocoanut tree to pick ripe cocoanuts is a mere lark to a native Hawaiian boy.

Above—Outrigger canoes are necessary if one would venture into the swirling waters around Hawaii—another fascinating sport. Below is one of the many rice plantations.

The ceremony was Washington and Jefferson's one hundred and twenty-seventh annual one.

SURVEY SHOWS ORGANIZATION IN CRIME

CHICAGO, June 7—(AP.)—Two new chapters of a sensational report on Chicago crime were made public today by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice. They charged the growth of a gambling syndicate which at one time reached into many other cities, and they recited in detail, going back to the early 1900s, "the rule of the underworld and the rise of its overlords."

The association's survey, which has been financed, in part, by the Carnegie Foundation, points to three major conclusions at the end of "this rapid survey of organized gambling."

"The first fact," the report said, "is the continuity and persistency of a form of social life organized around personalities who play an important role, because the relationships in the underworld of gambling, vice and crime are personal and feudal, rather than formal and institutional.

STRENGTHENED BY POLITICS

"The second fact is that every change in political administration (from 1907 to date) effected a change often amounting to a revolution in the existing order in the gambling world.

DEFEATS REFORMERS

"The third fact is that gambling, in resisting attacks of reformers and in meeting new situations created by changes in administration, seems to have become more solidified in organization, and more flexible in adaptations to new situations, and more concealed in its operations. In other words, it is the ineffective efforts of the community to defend itself against vice and gambling that gives it its organized character.

"Practically, reform in the past has amounted to little more than a gesture. New tactics need to be worked out in order to take into account the complexity of the situation."

ALL CRIME SYNDICATED

The survey set forth that the complete life history of one man, were it known in detail, "would disclose practically all there is to know about syndicate gambling as a phase of organized crime in the last quarter century." That man, said the report, is Mont Tennes, "avowedly a real estate man, and for more than a score of years proprietor of the General News Bureau, controlling wires for the gathering and dispensing of race track news in Chicago and principal cities of the United States."

"His alliances with and wars of violence against competitors," continues the report, "would involve the names of every gambler of consequence in Chicago for this period."

One section of the report was sub-headed "The Bombing War of 1907." This was directed at Tennes, then in the midst of building up a gambling monopoly, the report said. For several weeks Mont's rivals were accused of fostering a "reign of terror" by bombing a dozen or more places in the first big outbreak of rival gang factions.

LETHARGY AMONG OFFICERS

The lethargy of officials in pursuing inquiries into this 1907 warfare was set forth in the report with comments of the newsppers of that day, indicating affiliation of some gangsters and officials.

With the eclipse of the Tennes sway, the report noted the rise of John Torrio, "New York East Sider, Tammany graduate and a student in the Chicago Levee district."

Torrio was held responsible for bringing out Dion O'Banion, gang leader, who was shot to death in his floral shop; "Scarface Al" Capone, of the present day and others.

"The killing of Big Jim Colisimo, cafe man, and the passing of the Volstead act led Torrio to turn his attention to the manufacture of contraband booze and distribution of it throughout the city," read the report.

The conflict for "possession" of suburban Cicero, the survey set forth, was marked by the slaying of Eddie Tancl, Cicero competitor of Torrio, who was slain by James Doherty, a Torrio henchman, who himself later was shot down by machine gunners at the time Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin was slain in 1926.

BECOMES MILLIONAIRE

Torrio succeeded in controlling Cicero elections and built what perhaps has been the most powerful underworld organization the city has known, the report said. Accumulating a fortune, Torrio went abroad with his family in 1924, taking with him a million dollars in securities and letters of credit, it was reported. He returned in six months when violence broke out in his stronghold with the killing of Frank Capone, Al's brother and Torrio aide. Torrio's activities in the "Racket" finally caused his indictment and conviction. Meanwhile he was attacked and shot by rivals, and on his recovery he seemed to welcome the chance to go to jail, the report read.

Then came the rise of Al Capone, the Torrio henchman, who succeeded to the overlordship.

'Desertion' Ahead Of Bullet Held Justifiable

Stephen Janeda, West End policeman, was refused a divorce by Common Pleas Court yesterday in his suite against Mrs. Pataqua Bessie Janeda. He had charged her with deserting him July 17, 1924, but in an opinion dismissing the case, the court pointed out that testimony showed he had shot at her several times with his revolver, thretening to kill her and that the desertion had in a way been forced upon her.

SUSPECT TO BE QUIZZED IN NORTH SIDE ROBBERY

Identified, detectives say, as a bandit suspect, William H. Salls, of Isabella street, will be arraigned in North Side Police Court today in connection with the holdup of Arthur Lambert, 600 East Diamond street. Lambert was robbed of $23 late Tuesday as he entered his home.

Pittsburgh Man Ends 30 Years' Suffering By Using Famous Ten Herbs.

"Although I am 55 years old, Ten Herbs has made me feel as if I were 20," was the statement of Mr. Bernard Williams, 32 Irwin Street, Crafton Heights, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's

MR. BERNARD WILLIAMS

Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous natural medicine to crowds of men and women.

"For more than 20 years I suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble," Mr. Williams continued. "During that time I was in several hospitals and spent thousands of dollars for medical aid, but I never got any noticeable results. My appetite was poor, and I could not sleep properly. I suffered with indigestion, and my kidneys gave me a lot of trouble. I had given up hope of ever being able to get any relief.

"I was advised to try Ten Herbs, and I started using your medicine. I am now on the third bottle, and there has been a great change for the better. My appetite is good, and food digests properly. My kidneys seem to be in perfect condition. I shall be glad to tell anyone what Ten Herbs has done for me, if they will call at my address. I urge all who suffer as I did to give your medicine a trial, as I feel sure it will do as much for them as it did for me."

Ten Herbs must be highly beneficial to the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, or people in this section would not go on buying it in such amazing quantities. Get a bottle today and you may never again say, "Nothing can help me." Ten Herbs is pleasant to take, and cleansing and soothing in action.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

One-Eyed Connolly to Desert His Art, the Movies, to Attend Democrat's Confab at Houston

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.

THE Democratic National Convention at Houston, Tex., is now an assured success. The worries of the committee chiefs are ended, and all is serene along the Bourbon front. One-eyed Connolly, the celebrated gate-crasher, has sent his assurances to Gov. Al Smith that he will absolutely and without fail be present.

Conolly missed the Kentucky Derby for the first time in years. He was among the absent when Sammy Mandell mowed down Jimmy McLarnin for the lightweight championship of the world at the Polo Grounds. And the championship fights Connolly misses are few and far between.

As a result, the Democrats were badly worried about the success of their shindig down in Houston. They understood that the one-eyed gate crasher has lost his pep and was no longer showing up at national events.

Connolly, now in Hollywood, hastened to assure them by letter, air mail and telegram—all collect—that this base rumor is false. He has been detained by the movies, by his art, as it were.

For Connolly has succumbed to the lure of the kleig lights and is now an actor and an artist. He is playing an important role in "The Barker," with Milton Sills, at First National Studios, and the call of the camera proved stronger than the Kentucky Derby and the Mandell-McLarnin fight.

But his picture contract will soon be ended. Then a familiar form, cap cocked over one eye, will roll under an eastbound box car and the dust of Hollywood will be shaken from the familiar person of one Connolly.

Yes, he'll be at Houston, probably disguised as an ice cream cone, and will crash the gates at the convention hall with his usual eclat and dispatch.

PLAYERS YOU'LL SEE -:- IN AMUSEMENTS -:- HERE NEXT WEEK

Anne Forrest will be seen in "Saturday's Children," next week's play in the Pitt.

Reginald Denny is the star of "That's My Daddy," coming to the screen in the Aldine.

George Bancroft is booked in the Stanley photoplay, titled "The Drag Net."

Lois Moran has the stellar role in "Don't Marry," motion picture booked for the Davis.

Lois Quinn is a member of the Nixon Players, whose next stock comedy is "Little Old New York."

For a necessary sequence of the picture, "The Girl on the Barge," which Universal is making on the Erie Canal, Edward Sloman has just sent to New York for four girls. Chamberlain Brown is dispatching Beatrice Blinn, a cousin of Holbrook Blinn, who has been appearing in "The Song Writer," Adelaide Rondell, whose experience has been largely in stock; Barbara Barondess, who has been appearing in New York this season in the Joe Cook hit, "Rain or Shine," and Peggy Shannon, late of the Ziegfeld Follies.

LOCAL SONGSTRESS FEATURE IN WILLOWS

One of the attractions in the New Willows, Oakmont, is Miss Patti, Pittsburgh songstress. Cass Hagen's orchestra plays the programs for the dancers.

"Hangman's House," coming to the Grand next week, featuring Victor McLaglen, was written by Don Byrne. June Collyer plays the leading feminine role.

The first moving picture with a black-face cast is "Hams and Eggs at the Front," coming to the Olympic next week. Among the players are Tom Wilson, Heinie Conklin and Myrna Loy.

The vaudeville feature in the Harris for the last half of this week is the Zermaine Farrar Revue. The screen feature is Johnny Walker and Bessie Love in "The Matinee Idol."

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the last three days of this week includes Otis Mitchell and his Maryland Singers. The screen presentation is Fred Thompson in "Sunset Legion."

Pimples Itched And Burned Badly Cuticura Healed

"My trouble began with a breaking out of pimples which caused disfigurement. My forehead and back were just covered with them. Some of the pimples festered and scaled over leaving my skin rough. They itched and burned so badly that I was constantly scratching, and scratching caused eruptions. My clothing aggravated the breaking out on my back, and I lost sleep on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted for two years.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased more. I got relief within a week and inside of six weeks my trouble was healed." (Signed) Miss E. Dunkelberger, 135 Liberty St., Newtown, Pa., July 11, 1927.

WOMAN JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

Mrs. Susie Wilson, Negro, occupant of the second floor, 6371 Frankstown avenue, was committed to jail for contempt of court by Judge Ambrose B. Reid, after she had refused to unbar a door leading from a hallway to a barber shop on the first floor.

"I'll rot in jail before I unlock that door," declared the woman as she stood before the court. James I. Clark, Negro proprietor of the shop, obtained a preliminary injunction against the woman May 23 and she was summoned for violating the court's order. Clark testified she had prevented his use of the hallway.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928.)

ENCOURAGED by the lack of enthusiasm over the proposed deluge of suburban flivvers on Kansas City, the Democratic farmers are going to stampede the Houston convention.

This procession is intended as a rebuke against the veto of the drought and rain bill.

Politics in the farmlands is generally a question of whose family you marry into. You may start out a Republican and then find out that you are stampeded by your wife's three Democratic brothers.

The Kansas City protest will be in the form of 100,000 flivvers, which is a waste of power.

If we remember correctly about Madison Square Garden, the farmers should leave their cars home and bring 100,000 horns along.

Noise is power at political conventions. Yells are facts and whoops are corroboration.

The march against Houston will not be in flivvers. The Democratic farmers intend to use tractors.

If they were really smart they would use tanks.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE twenty-seventh annual banquet of the National Association of Music Merchants to be staged in the Hotel Commodore, New York, will be broadcast through the Red Network, including WCAE, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, will be the principal speaker.

Well-known artists will appear on the program broadcast by KDKA tonight from the studio in the Fort Pitt Hotel. A song recital will be given by Mary Earl Allen, contralto of Mt. Lebanon, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lois Lane, of Warren, O. This program will be heard at 7:15 o'clock. Mrs. Allen was born in Scotland and graduated from Glasgow Conservatory, where she studied with Prof. John Bogue—a pupil of Marchesi. She is a gold medal graduate of Chicago Musical College, studying with Jessie Waters Northrup and is a post-graduate of Des Moines College. She has also done extensive work with Oscar Saenger.

Donald Bain, whistler and imitator of birds and animals, who has traveled extensively entertaining thousands of children and grown-ups, will do his act for the listeners of KDKA beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

A musical salad will be served up by the harmonic gastronomists of the Dodge Brothers presentation through Red Network stations, including WCAE, at 8 o'clock. Immediately after the opening fanfare of trumpets, a culinary quartet will pour in some subtle seasoning with "Just a Little Blue for You." Soon afterwards a dash of paprika will be added with "Crazy Rhythm," sung by Vaughn de Leath to the accompaniment of the full orchestra. The basic ingredients will be similar to previous broadcasts comprising such popular selections as "Hello, Montreal," "Little Log Cabin of Dreams" and "Dream River." The final selection will be "Etiquette Blues."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society, Undaunted by Bad Weather, Opens Annual Horse Show at Sewickley, With Matinee

WITH June apparently deciding that it is April, it is hard to predict weather more than 10 or 15 minutes ahead, but at least it is safe to say that the horse show is beginning its three-days' session this afternoon, even though rain should prevent a large crowd from attending. It is just a matinee today, you know, but the sessions tomorrow and Saturday will be all day. It is being held in the Allegheny Country Club show ring, but of course you know that.

More and more each year, local folks are showing a preference for using their parked cars as vantage points for watching the horses, and the greater part of the space about the ring has been apportioned off for these automobiles. Richard King Mellon and Harvey Norton Van Voorhis have reserved parking space, and so have Thomas M. Jones III, Herbert A. May and Mrs. May's mother, Mrs. James Davidson, of Beaver; A. Rex Flinn, Simon Patterson, Benjamin Franklin Jones III, Donald C. Bakewell, George H. Calvert and J. Frederic Byers.

Mrs. Faber Downey is planning to watch the show from her car, too, and so are Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. Charles F. Ramsburg, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Miss Mary Standish, Mrs. Christian I. Shannon, Mrs. Marcus Stoner, Mrs. C. L. Flaccus, Mrs. Robert T. M. McCready and Mrs. E. D. Gilmore. Among the others who have taken parking space are John C. Stewart, H. F. Bovard, L. W. Robinson, J. E. Brown, W. R. Blair, Jr., Dr. W. W. Lermann, William Arrott, T. F. Smith, W. G. Clyde, E. J. Kaufmann and G. H. Seagert.

Naturally the boxes will not be empty just because so many people would rather sit in their own cars to watch the show. The Thruston Wrights have taken a box and will entertain a few friends, and so have Mr. and Mrs. J. Twing Brooks. Miss Isabella Chalfant, Miss Mary McCune. The B. R. B. Townsends are box holders, too, and the C. I. Shannons have taken both a box and parking space.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon will, as usual, occupy a box with a group of their friends, and some of the others are E. S. Walker, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Woods, the William B. Schillers and the junior William Larimer Joneses.

The Eugene Pargyns, who have just recently gotten back from Europe, are also going to have a box and so are Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps Rose, the junior Samuel Alfred McClungs, Stuart Brown and the Lewis Anderson Parks. Mrs. William Nimick Frew is another box holder and in other boxes will be the David M. Kirks, the junior Henry M. Currys, the Grant McCargos, the George Hubbard Clapps, Mrs. James G. Pontefract, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore A. Willets and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver.

Miss Eleanor McCallam is another who has taken a box, and the J. Dawson Callerys, the Horace Forbes Bakers, the Edward Vose Babcocks, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Clause and Mrs. George Evans Tener are also boxholders. George W. Nicola, Thomas Patterson, the Harold Palmers, the J. B. Cullums, the William Walkers, John C. Slack and Mrs. M. B. Chaplin are also to have groups of friends as guests in their boxes.

LUNCHEON ENDS SEASON FOR OUTLOOK ALLIANCE

Luncheon, a playlet, music and cards in the South Hills Country Club served to conclude the season for the Outlook Alliance yesterday afternoon. More than 100 women were present at the luncheon, for which the decorations were garden flowers and which was in charge of Mrs. John Colclough as chairman of hostesses. The playlet was Irene Jean Crandall's "Memories," in which a mother and daughter, by means of a "radio photologue," see the women of past generations move in procession as the radio announcer tells a little of what each woman had achieved during her lifetime. Each of the women appeared in costume and many of these were authentic, one being more than 150 years old and another one having been patterned 75 years ago. Mrs. H. Kloman Schmidt and Mrs. C. R. Hall were the mother and daughter and in the "photologue" appeared Mrs. J. F. Torrence, Mrs. M. R. Moxley, Mrs. Rothwell Jones, Mrs. Elizabeth Kridel, Miss Lucy Gleeson, Mrs. A. H. McCreery, Mrs. D. K. Ballard, Mrs. E. B. Heyser, Mrs. T. C. McCausland, Mrs. Paul Chapin, Miss Helen Palmer, Mrs. W. Z. Burns, Mrs. P. W. Dutton, Mrs. Marion Foster Smith and Mrs. H. K. Brady.

The music, which appropriately interspersed the indicated periods of time, was furnished by Mrs Florence Stewart Blackmore and Mrs. Martin Leiseder, pianists, and a trio composed of Mrs. L. A. Donaldson, Mrs. Raymond Metzger and Mrs. Louise A. Staub, vocalists.

An added note of pleasure came with the presence of Mrs. Rosalie M. Pentecost, one of the members, who is home from Cisco, Tex., for a visit, and who had brought with her hand-made handkerchiefs of Mexican linen as gifts for the board members. During her stay Mrs. Pentecost will be the house guest of Mrs. Charles S. Hutchison, of South Evaline street. In response to her introduction by Mrs. H. D. Stark, the president, Mrs. Pentecost gave an original poem composed for the occasion.

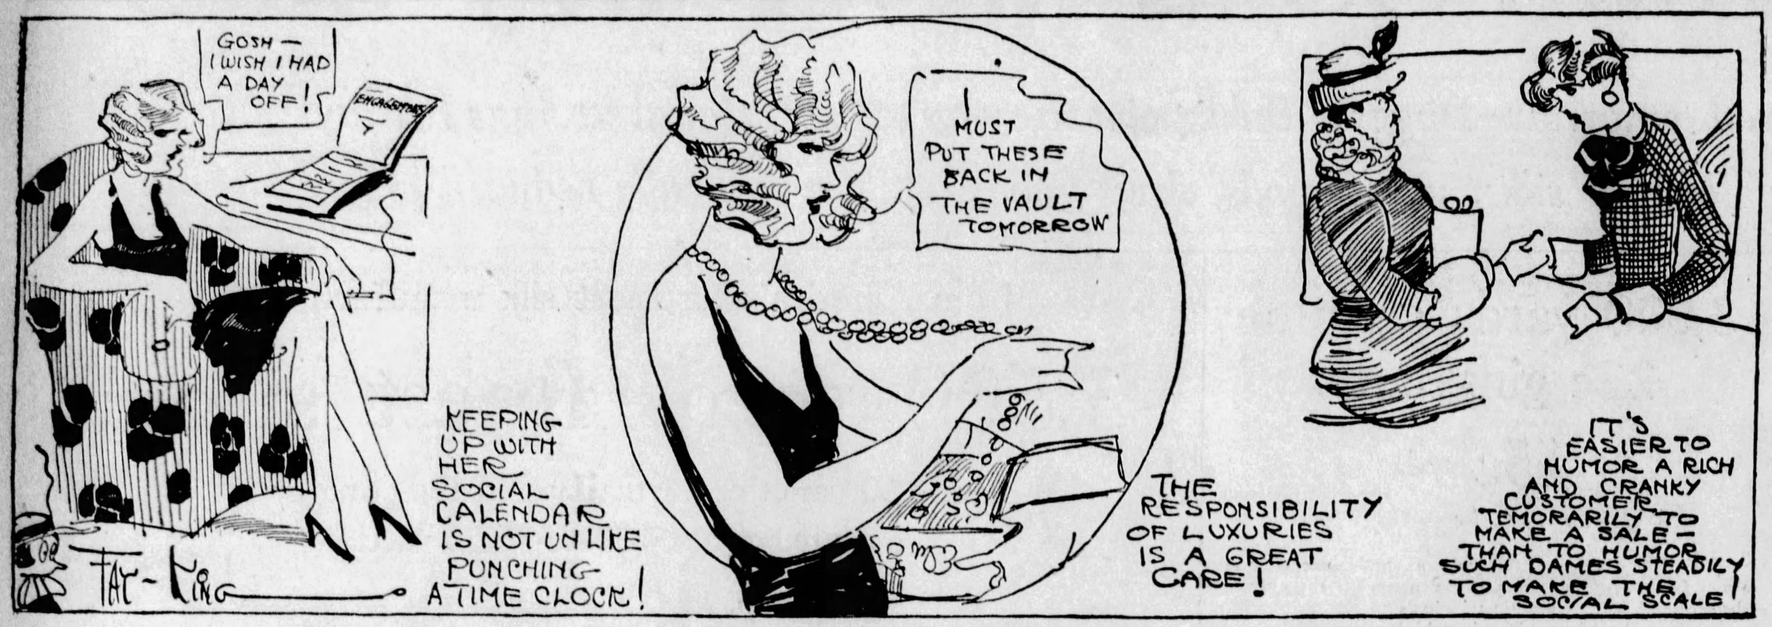
Fay King Contrasts Simple Life With Idle One



By FAY KING.

I HAVE always had to earn my own living, and I don't doubt that I always shall have to.

However, I have always considered my lot in life a much better lot than that which we sometimes call "idle," but which has always seemed to me a sort of slavery to a social calendar.

I'd a lot rather punch a time clock and know that after working hours my time is my own to spend as I wish, and to be able to choose the friends I like, than to be humoring people for the standing they can give me and the fact that to know them is to be "in right!"

I have always thought that having one tiny nook of home where you can stay put is a lot nicer than having a league of homes that you have to travel over each season like a baseball club or be thought out of your set!

While I have no valuable jewels, I would dread the responsibility of dragging them in and out of the vault every time I wanted to wear them.

I have never had the thrill of "knockin' 'em dead;" I haven't had the terror of being knocked dead by crooks either!

I think there is a great deal of comfort in leading a life that doesn't matter much to anybody but myself. To have nothing that any one envies means not being bored by keeping up with those who have more!

Marble swimming pools and liveried butlers mean nothing in my life. If I fell into a fortune as some do, I'd go on living very much as I have always lived. I'd never sink it into a home that's built like a movie set, and throw big banquets for a bunch of shoulder patters. Why add worries when you get a chance to forget them.

However, we all have different ideas of living.

MRS. J. F. SIPPEL WINS BY 150

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, was eletced president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here yesterday, defeating Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of Indianapolis, by approximately 150 votes.

Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., defeated Mrs. C. P. Miller of Fort Scott, Kan., for the second vice presidency and Mrs. H. C. Taylor of Bloomfield, Ia., was elected recording secretary over Mrs. W. R. Alvord, of Detroit.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, Mass., automatically became first vice president and Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, of Paducah, Ky., treasurer, as neither had opposition.

Resolutions urging restriction of athletics for girls, a workman's compensation law for the District of Columbia and abandonment of a scheme to construct dams along the Canadian boundary line were passed by the convention.

The resolution on girls' sports asked all clubs to assist in seeing that athletics for girls be surrounded with adequate safeguards to health and that exercise be provided for all girls rather than for only the outstanding performers.

Delegates were urged to wear cotton by Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, candidate for one of Texas' seats in the United States Senate. Addressing Southern representatives in particular, Mrs. Cunningham said Southern merchants do not handle attractive and stylish cotton frocks and added that clubwomen are asking: "Why do we have to wear silk where it is 'cotton weather' from May to October?" Other representatives asserted that smart cotton costumes are available in the East.

A Delicious New Jam You Can Make from STRAWBERRIES and PINEAPPLE in 15 minutes

This recipe for Mixed Pineapple and Strawberry Jam is very popular.

No finer blend of flavors can be imagined than that of the delicately luscious strawberry with the refreshing tartness of ripe, juicy pineapple. Many women like this recipe, too, for its economy, since the pineapple makes your strawberries go so much further.

Crush to a fine pulp about 1 quart ripe berries. Put pineapple (fresh or canned) through food chopper, or chop very fine. Measure 2 level cups of each fruit into large kettle. In case of slight shortage of one fruit, use enough of the other fruit to make 4 cups total. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in ½ cup Certo. Skim, pour quickly, and cover hot jam at once with hot paraffin wax.

Certo is the natural jellifying substance extracted from fruit, refined and bottled so that you may use it with all fruits to get a quick, perfect "set" without long boiling.

With the delicately flavored pineapple and strawberry the advantages of the Certo method are especially noticeable. For Certo not only makes these difficult fruits jell perfectly every time, but the short boil, possible only with Certo, prevents the loss of fresh flavor and color which occurs during long boiling.

"Certo way the best way" says eminent cooking expert

Miss Alice Bradley, Principal, Miss Farmer's School of Cookery and Cooking Editor, Woman's Home Companion, says—"One trial will convince you that the best way to make jams and jellies is 'The Certo Way.'"

Your grocer has Certo. A book of simple, tested recipes comes under the label of each bottle.

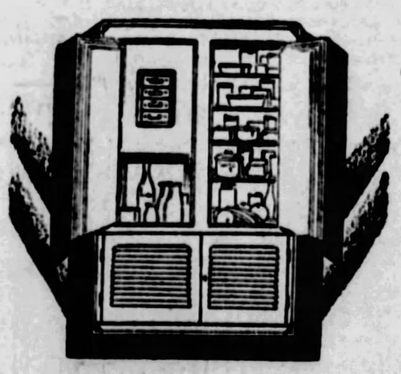
"any ice today, lady"

If YOU have an ice box, be certain that it is capable of keeping out the heat and retaining the cold. One hundred pounds of ice will last longer and will provide more efficient refrigeration in a well constructed ice box, with heavy insulated walls, and one that is designed for proper circulation of cold air. The proper arrangement of food will also help utilize refrigeration to the fullest extent.

The individual service rendered each day by your Ice Company, the actual delivery into your refrigerator, is a service upon which you can depend; but refrigeration within the ice box, the satisfactory preservation of food, is dependent upon the refrigerator itself to disseminate the "chill."

Another method of refrigeration, and one which is also being used in many homes today, is that of Automatic Electric Refrigeration. Foods can be kept almost indefinitely without spoilage through the constant frigid temperature maintained by electric control.



Kelvinator and Frigidaire Electric Refrigerators, designed for home use, are now on display and for sale at

ALLEGHENY GENERAL STARTS BUILDING DRIVE

$5 MILLION FUND HALF IN NOW; SITE READY

With $2,500,000 quietly raised during the last 18 months and another $2,500,000 needed before construction can begin, Allegheny General Hospital directors today announced initiation of a campaign to bring its building fund to $5,000,000. Actual cost of the new structure will be $6,000,000, it is reported.

The decision to appeal to the Pittsburgh district this year was authorized by the directors meeting at the Union Trust Company. Dr. Maitland Alexander, president of the hospital board, presided. The resolution authorizing the campaign, introduced by James L. Stuart, was passed unanimously.

Steps were immediately taken to add to the strength of the board for the advance gifts work, through which $1,500,000 is to be sought by enlisting the aid of other Pittsburghers. The resultant group is expected to number 45. This group will gather for the first time at a dinner in the Pittsburgh Club next Monday night. And take active steps to augment the fund this month.

Dr. Alexander announced that the initial effort would be to raise through large subscriptions in June and early autumn at least $1,500,000, and that the work of the special gifts group will be followed in October or November with a public appeal for $1,000,000. This would still be short of the actual building cost but it is planned to borrow the balance.

The large endowment fund of the institution—at present $3,373,614, yielding an annual income of more than $135,000—will make it possible to operate the new hospital without appreciable additional funds, it was said.

NEW SITE READY

Through gift and purchase, a three-acre site has been acquired on North avenue, facing the park, at Cedar avenue. The tract extends back to Hemlock street between Porterfield and Esplanade streets. The new site lies only a short distance from the present one, but is removed from noise, dirt and traffic confusion.

The new hospital will be one of the finest and most unusual general hospitals in the United States, according to Dr. S. S. Glodwater, of New York, noted hospital consultant, who has been working on the plans in collaboration with York and Sawyer, architects. It will greatly increase the number of private and semi-private rooms, making room for more patients of moderate means, a present deficiency to be accentuated when the Presbyterian Hospital removes to the Schenley district medical center.

The out-patient department, which today handles more than 40,000 cases a year, will be able to care for 100,000 visits annually, ultimately for 150,000. At present the Allegheny General's out-patient department is the largest in Western Pennsylvania.

This phase is expected to prove of outstanding importance, for here will be created a group of health clinics serving as a health education center for the district.

A Fair Maid Meets Love In Strange Surroundings

Three Little Girls Along Main Street, the Sheik Tries to Flirt

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and her lively sister, Kitten, are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her and she is astonished at his popularity with some of the rich girls who snub her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. At a party in the Rossiter home Emily grows jealous of Marilee Grainger, who is supposed to be engaged to Kent. She wanders into the moonlight. Kent follows her, kisses her and calls her beautiful. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Under Mrs. Haiden Emily has made a hit with the smart set. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

MARTY answered gruffly, "That's it—sneaking. What's it all about? Can't I walk up to your front door as well as some of those cake-eaters? Could take a chance of me couldn't you?"

"Ah, now, Marty, not mad with Avis? You know how we stand—"

Emily saw her hand slip up his arm, curl around his neck, draw his head down; she saw Avis kiss him on the lips. And she saw Marty thrust his hands into his pockets, straighten up, stand unmoved.

"You don't care any more?" A rising note of hysteria in the girl's voice now; she caught his arm and shook it. "You don't care? I'll tell you something! I'm going to be married! Two or three weeks now—next month—I'm going to be married!"

But he only shrugged and went on standing there, head turned away from the beautiful face lifted to his own.

His indifference seemed to inflame her; she threw out her arms, brought them together on the railing and bowed her head on them.

"You—oh, you'd let me go!" she sobbed. "You'd do that! Listen: I'm ready—do anything. Drive down to Jersey—married tonight—you will? You did care!"

He jerked about and caught her shoulders, not gently; spoke in an evil growl with a hint of Tim Nolan whirring through his speech.

"So it's anything you'd do now, is it? Anything to be gettin' your own way. That's it; your own way is what you want.

"Marry you? Not in a million years! Think I want a painted doll for a wife? I picked out that one a long time back and she doesn't speak your language. Snap out of it now and don't be havin' any more dreams."

"But Marty—" The daughter of the Rossiters put out a restraining hand trying, it seemed, to hold him back. "You don't love me? You never loved me?"

"Certainly not! What did you think? Another thing; don't come pesterding around me after you're married. That's out."

With this he stalked away and Avis followed slowly, handkerchief pressed to her lips.

The girls on the bench heard an engine roar—wheels turning on the gravel. The two had taken their sordid little affair away; they were gone.

Emily was shaken; she drew a hard, excited breath and spoke in a fury of contempt. "How could he, Stell? Be such a brute—oh, and that poor girl. Begging so."

But Stella laughed harshly and told her not to be a fool. "It was her or him, wasn't it? He's got her number. Those society dames! Yes, and the men too. I ought to know. Watch out for their kind, Em."

But it didn't seem reasonable Emily thought as they walked homeward. Supposing Kent had remained here and they had fallen in love—supposing, rather, he had got to feel about her as she always had felt about him.

Would he sometime have treated her as Skeets Bradley was treating Stella? As Stella said Avis was acting toward Marty? Flirting a little, inviting love, throwing it away?

Kent—no, never do this. Never a thing not stalwart and fine. Well, Kingdom Coles? Frances had told her of his loves.

She decided to be careful about Coles. Not let him talk to her in a corner all evening, call her "little golden sweetheart." Of course he smiled when he said this but his eyes were eager. Strange how those things could be.

And Marilee Grainger whom everyone said was to marry Kent—would she be good to him, make him the sort of wife he deserved?

For the first time in her life Emily felt a two-edged hurt go stabbing through her heart.

She was too honest not to call it jealousy.

CHAPTER XXVI.

IT was late afternoon and three little girls were rushing along Main street.

Skirts flying, high heels clicking, bare heads jerking with every dancing step. One head covered with tight black ringlets much as Stella Brent's had been once; a brown one clipped short like a boy's.

A head with hair like curling flame. People stared at this one—turned and stared again. Little, rounded face, all mischief; long, yellow eyes under long, dark lashes. Pale green dress, short, so very short; wide, thin sleeves floating behind gracefully, strikingly, in the breeze of hurry.

Insouciance, an air of daring like a challenge about the small figure. And with it all a rare beauty drawing as a magnet.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

"I'll try some cleaner on that grease spot."

To their surprise, they found they had much in common. Both were amateur play-writers. Before the end of the evening they were calling each other by their first names.

"Let's go and see the Theater Guild put on Shaw's play, "Helen said. "On a fifty-fifty basis of course. You buy your ticket and I'll buy mine."

"It's inconvenient to be poor," John said himself lamely. He reasoned that the girl, too, would be after him for his money if she knew he had quantities of it.

But somehow he didn't feel just right about her buying her own ticket. But girls were all alike, he concluded, so he would continue to pretend to be poor.

The days that followed were happy ones for Helen and John. They worked on their respective plays together, each being a help and inspiration to the other; they danced in queer Bohemian places. But always Helen insisted on paying her share of the expenses, to the increasing discomfort of John.

John knew that he loved Helen and desired her with every fiber of his being. He had never dreamed of a pal like her, one so sympathetic, so understanding. Reason told him that she was different from all other girls, but memory recalled that he had thought the same of another woman once before.

Waiting for Helen at the settlement house a few evenings later he saw her drive up in a smart little roadster, accompanied by a young man with whom she was engaged in brisk conversation.

"Billy Staples has brought Helen Dickson home again," said a passing welfare worker. "Looks like a match, eh?"

"Why not?" asked her friend. "He has oodles of money and is crazy about her. What more could a girl ask?"

John hurried out the side door before Helen came in. His mind was in a state of confusion. There was only one thing of which he was sure and that was that he was in danger of losing Helen. Well, he wouldn't give up easily.

He walked around and around the block until he concluded that he did not care what Helen might prove to be, once she knew the truth.

Hastily he burst into Helen's office; she was laboriously working on her play.

"I want to tell you, Helen," he began, "that I haven't been exactly square with you. Instead of being poor, I'm rather well-to-do—and I love you."

Helen regarded him blankly for a moment and then she began to laugh hysterically.

"As confessions are in order, I'll make mine," she told him. "I happen to have some money myself and I'm only staying down here while my parents are in Europe. To think that I should have fallen in love with a man who cared for me and not for my money!"

"Then you do care?" John asked.

"Oodles!" said Helen.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Double Finesse

By ANNE MAE BRADY

JOHN noticed her first as she placed a knife, fork and spoon on her tray and moved it noiselessly over the polished rail.

She was worth looking at, too. A trim, little figure in a blue business suit. It is true that her close-fitting hat partly concealed her features, but he was able to see a brown lock that curled deliciously over her smooth, pink cheek, a rosebud mouth, and a nose that tilted slightly.

Before deciding on the chicken salad, the cobbler with the pyramid of whipped cream, and the cup of tea with lemon, John noticed that the girl invariably cast her eyes to the line of white figures above which gave the essential information as to price.

"Necessary economy," John decided mentally, and if there was anything to which he had an aversion, it was a poverty-stricken girl.

Unfortunately, she attempted to pass him just as he was putting the plate of roast beef on his tray and his elbow completely flattened the top of the creamy pyramid.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," the girl cried.

"That's all right," John replied, trying to appear indifferent.

"It isn't all right," she declared. "It is unpardonable, but if you will come to my table I'll do my best to repair the mischief I have done."

Somehow it pleased him to have her so concerned as to whether the cream would leave a spot. It had been a long time since anyone had been interested in anything but his money.

When John first came to the city he had bought, on the insistence of a high pressure salesman, a few acres of vacant suburban land. To meet his monthly payments he had to do his own laundry, walk to work, and live on two meals a day. When a factory paid him a price for his land that made him independent, John Blake was the most surprised man in the world.

Immediately he took on a new value in the eyes of the office stenographer and as he was unsophisticated she nearly had him at the altar before he realized that she was just a gold digger. The affair made John cynical and he arrived at the conclusion that all poor girls were out to marry money. Only the rich ones could afford to marry for love. Therefore John decided to seek a rich girl who would love him for himself alone. Thus far his quest had been unsuccessful.

"If you will come around the corner to the settlement house where I work," the girl told him,

MUSSOLINI The Life Story of the Man of Destiny

Growth of Bolshevism in Italy After World War

Reds Spread Terror and The Government Is Panic-Stricken

What Has Gone Before

From boyhood Mussolini was rebellious. When he became a teacher the calling became so distasteful that he decided to travel abroad. In Switzerland the self-exiled youth showed radical tendencies and he was expelled from the country. As an irredentist he continued to get into trouble. His combative spirit wins him many followers. He establishes a newspaper and his initiative wins him great popularity. He advocated an intervention with Italy in favor of Belgium and France. He showed unusual heroism in war and was wounded many times.

Now Go On With the Story.

Leader of War Veterans

By VITTORIO DE FIORI

CHAPTER XVI.

AFTER the armistice, many thought that Mussolini would sink back into obscurity. But such was not the case. The legions of the former shock troops gathered about him, and he quickly became the leader of the war veterans, putting them on their guard against the wiles of the Socialistic foxes who were again beginning to raise their heads with impunity.

BENITO MUSSOLINI

From the columns of his paper Mussolini exhorted the government and the nation to grant generous concessions to the soldiers who were coming back from the bloody trenches.

"We must not forget the hosts of those who are returning from the battlefields," he wrote. "We must give an internal, social interpretation to the war, recompense the masses that have defended the nation and bind them to the nation's future welfare."

But his words were unheeded by the government. The people, after an initial outburst of enthusiasm, were sinking back into their wonted apathy.

Mussolini's spirit rose in revolt:

"Enrico Toti, greatest of our war heroes, your life and death are worth infinitely more than all of Italian Socialism! The innumerable rank and file of those who insisted upon war, knowing what war meant, who went to their death, the thousands of brave men who form the proud constellation of Italian heroism, feel that the jackal pack is rummaging among their sacred bones, pawing the earth that was fertilized with their blood. But those glorious dead need have no fear!

"The hateful task is barely begun; it shall not be completed! We shall defend the dead, even at the cost of digging our trenches in the squares and streets of our cities!"

Against Wilson's Doctrines

Only four months after the close of the war, he clearly perceived the necessity for Fascism: "We must again prepare weapons of iron and men of steel, and strike without mercy!"

He kept on writing violent articles against governmental sloth and indifference, and outlined a program of reforms and measures that the nation ought to have adopted in favor of all those who had risked their lives for their country.

But all the Allied nations, engaged in deplorable, disreputable squabbles, paid little or not attention to the soldiers who were returning home, worn out by the hardships of war.

Mussolini advocated a peace without reservations or compromises, a peace that would give Italy all that Italy deserved as a reward for her voluntary participation in the war. He was the only Italian journalist who, at the time, fearlessly supported D'Annunzio in his attacks against Wilson's Fourteen Points, for he already perceived that the doctrines of the American President were imbued with a pernicious sentimentalism that would wreak havoc with the Italian people. He saw that Wilson's doctrine, conceived and based upon an erroneous interpretation of European reality, was the capital foe of Italy's most vital aspirations and meant the nullification of the sacrifices that Italy had faced to bring about the realization of her ideals. The supine surrender of the Italian government to the orders of the Allied statesmen at the Versailles conference aroused Mussolini's most bitter aversion and contempt.

But Wilson's liberalism triumphed, aided and abetted by the spreading of a new, terrible spiritual disease, favored by the enforced unemployment and poverty which prevailed in the ranks of Italian labor immediately after the war.

Revolutionary Madness

Russia became the new ideal. The idealistic, undisciplined Italian soul that had trustingly, enthusiastically followed Wilson, now, in disillusionment, turned to Lenin. A revolutionary madness burst out among the people and in the press. Even liberal, democratic papers began to hail and prophesy the advent of the Bolshevistic millennium. From the turbulent, starving, disappointed masses a single, fearful cry arose:

"Long live the revolution!"

The monarchy, the papacy, nationalism had become things of the past. There would be no more wars, consequently down with the army and the navy. Away from Trentino, Fiume and the colonies!

Radical orators, openly and unmolested, urged the population to revolt, inciting the workers to slay, destroy and break the yoke of the bourgeoisie. Traitors and deserters walked about freely in the streets, thanks to the amnesty granted them by Nitti, and the revolutionary press hailed them as heroes. Offensive publications and pictures against the King and the army were distributed on the streets and posted on the walls.

When the victorious regiments decided to march in triumph through the streets of Rome, Nitti refused them permission to do so, reminding them of the threats of the Socialists and Communists, and ordered the triumphal arches that had

FLIERS SET TO LEAVE FIJIS

International News Service.

SUVA, Fiji Islands, June 8.—(Friday)—Having been delayed by difficulties in refueling, the Australian-bound monoplane Southern Cross probably will hop off for Brisbane sometime before noon today.

-Kingsford-Smith

The huge trimotored Fokker is poised on Naselai Beach, 16 miles from here, awaiting an opportune moment for starting the 1,700-mile jump over open waters.

A stiff wind was blowing from the east as the final drums of petrol were emptied into the fuel tanks.

The four men of the crew—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, C. T. P. Ulm, Harry Lyon and James Warner—had hoped to get away last night, but the refueling proceeded slowly and winds were unfavorable.

RUNWAY ON BEACH

They flew their giant steel bird from the improvised airport at Albert Park here to Naselai Beach yesterday noon, hoping to be ready for the hopoff when low tide left them a mile straight-away of clear white beach.

The aviators were unable to land at Naselai on their first takeoff from Albert Park. They found the tide had not cleared sufficiently to insure a safe landing, so they circled over the city until the beach was finally clear of surf.

They are now set to go. A word from Commander Kingsford-Smith will se the hugh plane booming out over the last great "water hazard" of the expedition's 7,800-mile flight from California to Australia.

CHAPLIN, 6 ESCAPE BLAST

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(AP.)—Ten persons were injured, two probably fatally, in a fire and explosion that wrecked a popular Russian cafe in Hollywood at midnight, shortly after a party of film luminaries left the place.

The two persons seriously injured were Theodore Nodjensky, 50, former general in the Russian army, and Irving Strother, 34.

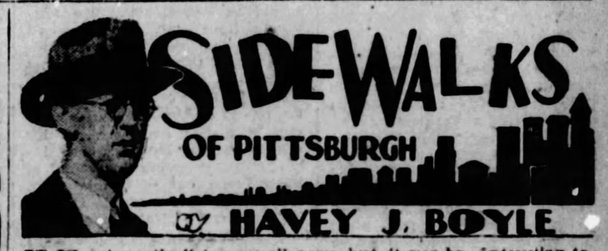
Among the guests whose timely departure probably saved them serious injury were Charles Chaplin, the Marquis de la Falaise, Colleen Moore and her husband, John McCormack, Renee Adoree and Jack Dempsey and his wife, Estelle Taylor.

Authorities immediately started an investigation on the theory the fire may have been of incendiary origin.

Jacques Neradoff, manager of the cafe, expressed the opinion escaping gas caused the explosion. This theory was scouted by officers from the county fire warden's and sheriff's offices, who said the fire apparently started nearly an hour before the blast occurred. They believed leaky gas pipes would have caused the detonation soon after the fire started.

TRADE BOARD ELECTS IN SOUTH BEECHVIEW

Frank A. Van Essen is the new president of the South Beechview Board of Trade. Other officers elected are: P. J. Rodgers, vice president; A. H. Woods, secretary, and I. K. Myers, treasurer. The Traders will finance the Lee school picnic at West View Park, June 27.



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

IT IS not exactly "stop-press" news, but it may be interesting to the men of the town that the ladies are going back to large hats. From the type of hat the flappers seemed to carelessly toss on the knobs of their heads the ladies, as usual, are going to the other extreme. Some of the models you see downtown would afford commodious quarters for a dinner for two on the brim alone. On the crown one could place a pot of flowers to give the meal an artistic touch.

The current headgear for the ladies is not a new style. A long time ago when the dudes were whistling "The Merry Widow," a well-known operatta of the time, whose chief feminine character affected a large hat, the current style was all the rage.

• • •

THOSE who were young in those days will recall that dancing was not much a contest (as it is now) to see which of the two parties to the ardous contract could hop about most, so much as it was an affair involving a trick to keep the girl's hat brim, far from her head, out of the male eye.

• • •

Whether the new style n hats will bring about a change in the way the hair is bobbed and not bobbed remains to be settled by the style-makers. That style of bob which makes the observer ask, "Where's your horse and chariot?" as it suggests Ben Hur, may now change to something more pleasing to the male eye. At any rate, the big hat has come to stay for awhile.

• • •

THIS is about as good as any time to deny the charge made by a doctor of the feet that Pittsburgh women's feet are larger than the feet of other women. The high hills was the reason given for the biological difference between Pittsburgh and say, Charleroi, girls. The plain fact, spoken here without bias or prejudice, is that the feet of ladies of other towns are every bit as big as Pittsburgh ladies' feet. No one can slur Pittsburgh womanhood while this column breathes.

• • •

A woman, by the way, reports that at a West Liberty school the children each morning sing to a bird that nestles regularly near the school house. This, it is true, holds a reverse mirror up to nature, but the story is documented and authenticated. The usual version of such a story is that the bird sings gaily for the children. This is another case of where the dust bites the Indian to make a better news item than when the Indian bites the dust. That paragraph seems to be a little mixed up.

HERE is another bird story: The bird, quite young, got its feathers wet in a tub of water in a suburban backyard. It was rescued from the tub and with tender hands placed in a basket in a cellar. Later the cat ate it. This teaches kindness to our little feathered friends and is not entirely without some consideration for dear friends among the feline family. It would have been a much nicer story if the cat had mothered the bird, as cats are reported to do sometimes in one-column boxes on page one, but this was not a one-column box cat. It was a very average cat that likes birds for reasons best known to itself.

In the same yard a chicken was heard to squawk quite loudly. Investigation proved that a large rat, foraging for nothing more than chicken grain, ran across a small chick which the rat appropriated. All the other chickens ran out of their coop, flapping their wings and calling for help. But by that time the victim was a gone chicken.

• • •

LATER, poison was put on a loaf of bread and placed in the path usually traversed by the rat in the hen-house. The next morning the bread and poison were gone, but that night a rat again came. Now was this another rat, or was it the same rat looking for more poison? In the suburbs we have the jolliest time, with everything seeming to get killed or something every minute of the day.

Anytime you feel like seeing a little bloodshed come out for a jolly day.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK PACKARD

Bob Saves the Life of The Malay and Wins His Gratitude

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up in a fragile craft by Capt. "Scarfare" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives the various articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Hidden in the hold of the ship he overhears five Chinamen plotting. The East Indian "Holy Man" is stabbed to death by one of the Chinamen. The Holy Man turns out to be Erna's brother, and she accuses Bob of the murder. Bob' life is threatened by the Chinamen. Bob is captured and left bound on the sinking boat. Verna is taken prisoner, Bob escapes from the sinking boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

HE DID not know whether the other had understood or not, for he had spoken in English; but at least the man remained passive in his arms.

There was a sudden crunching sound from along the boat's keel, a tearing sound—like the ripping and rending of timber. One of the reefs—the outer, or the inner, or the middle—God knew which! It was like the teeth of the thing voraciously gnawing into its prey. And the boat, trapped there, seemed to strike back now as though stung into furious rebellion, driving in vicious blows as it rose and fell, hammering itself at the reef, battling blindly, insanely, unmindful of self-consequences, as it were, if it might but work injury to its antagonist. Thud! Thud! Thud! The boat would be in pieces in a moment. It listed now. A slather of spray hid everything a foot away from the gunwales. Screams came—piercing, a chorus of them. The men and the women clung to each other, or whatever they could grasp, in abject terror. The boat cork-screwed with an ugly twist, and listed farther over. A mountain of water, onrushing, like some monstrous and rapacious ogre, rose up at the stern.

"Swim for it!" Bob Kingsley shouted to the Malay in his arms. "If you need help, put your hand on my shoulder, and—"

Chen-shu, at the stern, seemed to disappear suddenly from sight in foam and water as the billow reached him—and broke. The stern of the boat was high-flung in air. It seemed to hold there for an eternity of time, then it began to turn swiftly over on its side, righted itself as swiftly—and shot forward, free of the reef.

There were no more cries from the natives—only a strange, stunned silence. The boat, though heavy and sodden with its shipped water, was riding on an even keel. Chen-shu was shouting his orders again, his voice arrogant now with fear behind. The rowers were plying their oars. It was not smooth water here on the shoreward side of the reef; it was not a child's task even now to reach the beach—but it was comparatively sheltered water. Some one near the stern was bailing. There was something to bail with, then!

Moisture that was not due to spray stood out in little beads upon Bob Kingsley's forehead. He flirted them away with a sweep of his hand. It had been a thousand to one, aye, or 10,000, that last wave would have proved their destruction rather than their salvation!

The Malay, apparently quite recovered, was sitting up now without support. He touched Bob Kingsley on the arm.

"Tuan," he said in his native tongue. "I am thy servant."

Bob Kingsley nodded.

"That's all right," he answered kindly. "I understand. What's your name?"

"Kafan, O Master," the man replied.

CHAPTER XXIV.

AGAIN Bob Kingsley nodded—and then his eyes swept critically, speculatively around him. Aft of him were Chen-shu and two of the Chinamen; forward were the other two Chinamen. All of them, except Chen-shu, were at the oars, and, though there was little doubt now but that the boat would make the shore, the sea was still heavy enough and ugly enough to engage the undivided attention of every one of the five. Therefore, much as they might desire to resume immediate hostilities, it was obvious that they would be forced to forego any further attack upon him while out here in the boat. Nor would the actual landing itself offer them even then an opportunity, for he could make out the shore-line now as the boat topped the crest of a wave, and he could see that there was an angry surf breaking on the beach, through which the boat would still have to make its way.

Bob Kingsley's brows drew together in a deep, anxious furrow. He could see himself safely on shore without molestation; but after that—what? Knowing he was armed and fully aware of their intentions, and that it would certainly cost one or more of them their lives—Chen-shu's first!—at the slightest move they made against him, they might be a little chary in what they did. They would probably try at first by cunning to take him unawares! Chen-shu, even now, was perhaps devising some such scheme in that crafty and perverted brain of his!

But that would be only a temporary respite—for both himself and Verna. He did not know exactly how near or how far they were from Aoru, though it was fairly certain the place could not be more than a few miles away at most; but Aoru, at that, wasn't likely to afford any adequate protection for her. He had never touched there himself with the Alita, but from what he had ever heard of the place, and he had heard little because of its very insignificance, it was nothing more than what was commonly termed a "one-man beach." There would be a plantation there with a European on it, perhaps with his family—more likely alone, though—the agent of some English or Dutch firm. Possibly there might be several plantations; and, a number of miles inland, possibly one or two more that Aoru served as a port of call. That would certainly be the outside limit. It might be months, it certainly would be weeks, before the survivors from the Monotah could hope to find any means of getting back to civilization. And meanwhile the five Chinamen would be on the loose! Perhaps he, or one of the European planters, with the assistance of his natives, might be induced to incarcerate the yellow devils and so keep Verna out of harm's way. Any white man would do that if he could, and— No! There was a complication here he had not thought of. Verna herself! Verna was fully convinced that he, Bob Kingsley, Black Bob Kingsley, of pungently unholy fame, had murdered her brother. She would discredit his story in the eyes of any white man in Aoru—and deprive herself, without realizing it, of that source of protection, by leaving the Chinamen still free! His hands clenched fiercely. There was something ironical in that—damnably ironical!

They were getting nearer the shore. He thought he could distinguish figures running and crowding down to the water's edge—the occupants of Verna's boat, of course. He thought of Carter, and the possibility that some other boat with another white officer had got ashore—and shook his head. Little chance there! Carter, even if still alive, was almost certainly too badly hurt to be of any assistance—Parsons had said all the other boats had swamped.

Terror was giving place now to reviving spirits in the boat. The natives were chattering, giving vent to little cries, cries that were still hysterical—but glad cries. They no longer sat in the wash of water at the bottom of the boat. Bob Kingsley, too, resumed his original seat. Kafan, the Malay, crowded in beside him.

Bob Kingsley stared now for a long minute at the man. There was one other chance left—Nanu and the Alita. The schooner, of course, mustn't be brought to Aoru, not only because of the weather and the time it might take, but because Chen-shu would then know of its existence, and that might very easily be playing into Chen-shu's hands. Who knew what might, or might not happen in the next few hours! But if he, Bob Kingsley, could get word to Nanu! He couldn't go himself—he couldn't leave Verna with Chen-shu and his cutthroats from now until daylight, or longer even, until the survivors, say, had made their way to Aoru, or whoever was in Aoru came out to them. He couldn't leave her alone for any length of time—long or short!

He bent his head close to the Malay's.

"Were the words of Kafan from the heart a little while ago," he asked in stumbling Malay, "or only from the lips?"

The Malay's eyes met Bob Kingsley's and held there steadily.

"What the Tuan wills, I will do," he answered simply.

"Listen, then!" said Bob Kingsley tensely. "There is danger here for me, and for the white woman who went ashore in another boat. The Chinaman who steers this boat, and these others with him, would kill us both. There is great need of help. In that direction"—he pointed in the darkness—"is Aoru. Beyond Aoru—I do not know how far—there is a schooner lying close to the shore. The schooner is mine. Will you go to the vessel with a message?"

"Yes, Tuan," the man replied instantly.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Breaks Down, Weeping on Lillian's Shoulder

I MADE no answer to Lillian's cryptic comment upon my report of Eleanor Lincoln's request for Dicky's address. But I surmised that the query of my young neighbor concerning the vogue in foreign countries of the author whose latest book Dicky was illustrating had signified something of importance to my friend, who, I was sure, possessed information concerning the mysterious girl which she was keeping to herself.

"Of course, that means she's going to write to Dicky and tell him she's changed her mind about the posing stunt," Lillian said after a pause, and I knew that though she apparently was not looking at me, yet no slightest change in my expression was lost upon her.

"I suppose so," I answered listlessly, for my first flaming resentment against my beautiful and mysterious young neighbor had spent itself, and I felt only a great weariness of body and spirit.

Lillian raised her eyes and looked at me steadily for a long minute. Then she rose, walked over to my side and put her hand affectionately upon my shoulder.

"Look here, old dear!" she adjured. "Tell the stanch but aged side kick the truth. Not so adamant and hard-boiled where Friend Husband is concerned as you thought you were, are you?"

At her words and tone, wonderously tender, despite the mockery, the barriers I had built around my heart came crashing down, and turning toward her I buried my head in her kindly arms and broke into convulsive sobbing.

She spoke no word of expostulation or discussion, simply stood still, quietly stroking my hair. But when the paroxysm ceased, and I straightened myself in her embrace, stammering the beginning of a tremulous apology, her voice was like the snap of a whiplash.

"Shut up!" she commanded. "You've just done the thing I've been wanting you to do for weeks, and you start excusing yourself. It was against all nature and precedent for you to go around with a lump of ice instead of a heart connecting with your aorta or whatever the thing-a-ma-jing is that's supposed to be attached to your heart. You were bound to do one of two things—break or turn to flint. I've been afraid lately you were headed for the second alternative. Now you stretch out here and thank your stars everybody's out of the house save Katie and me. I'll sneak a napkin and some crushed ice and we'll have you all right in a jiffy."

She half led, half pushed me to the broad comfortable porch swinging couch, and when I had stretched myself upon it in utter nervous exhaustion, she whisked into the house, coming back in a minute with the things she had named. For the next ten minutes she sat by my side passing the ice-filled napkin over my hot face and smarting eyes, accompanying her ministrations with a slow drawling monologue.

"This 'outward friends but in reality strangers' thing is all right fog an experiment," she said, "but it's darned hard on the experimenters. Dicky's taking his out in cussing and artistic rages—they've had two new janitors at the studios, I hear, since that little performance on the Drive. But he hasn't been trying to fool himself into thinking his love for you had burned down to ashes, so he hasn't been headed for the brain-storm you've just had. I'm glad you've finally made the discovery that your supposed ashes are pretty live embers."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

DEBUNKING LOVE

"LOVE is the spiritualizing of sex," says Prof. Horn, of New York University.

"Love is biology in evening clothes," remarks a cynic.

* * *

Both are right. Love is Nature's primal instinct clothed in beauty, flavored with sentiment, glorified with tenderness and sugar-coated with romance—to make it attractive.

HELEN ROWLAND

All these wise modernists who fancy that they are "debunking" love by stripping it of its spiritual and mental qualities are merely denaturing it. They are babes stripping the Christmas tree to see what makes it glitter—taking Daddy's watch to pieces to find the "tick."

* * *

If petting and sex-attraction were all there is to LOVE, this world would be a deadly dull old place—the same today, yesterday and forever. Love, like the hotel soup, is all of the same "stock;" it's the flavoring that gives it variety.

* * *

But there is no variety in petting. From the first kiss to the last, one man's method is so exactly like another's that if you closed your eyes you could scarcely tell whether it was this year's conquest or last year's left-over who was kissing you.

* * *

It is the flavor of sentiment, the spice of mystery, the charm of sympathy and tenderness and the glamor of romance that give love its thrill and all is variety. It is the hors d'oeuvres that give zest to the appetite and piquancy to the dinner. And it is the surprises that turn love from a dinner of herbes into a banquet with wines and music.

* * *

After the third petting party, there are no surprises left for the average girl. It is all a dull and devastating sameness, like eating at the same cafeteria every day.

* * *

You may have been petted by a hundred men, but until you have known the mental and spiritual companionship of at least one man, you have never been loved! You have never known the tang and the kick and the beauty of love. You have pulled the watch to pieces, but you haven't found the "tick."

* * *

Most of the people in insane asylums spend their days doing the same silly things over and over and over again. But the only people outside of insane asylums who waste their time boring themselves to death in that way are the confirmed petters.

* * *

Love may spring from physical attraction, but far more often it springs from mental congeniality—the attraction of two personalities. Love is the highest of our divine instincts—and those who are satisfied with any of its imitations are cheating themselves out of life!

* * *

You may "debunk" politics, business, society, education and religion. But you can't "debunk" love or faith or hunger or beauty.

* * *

These are the eternal verities of life! You can only CHEAT yourselves out of them.

WHEN FASHION'S HUMOR CHANGES—

Who Knows Which Way Her Pleasure Will Sway?

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

THREE dainty little maids—all pensive and quiet and wondering. No, not over weighty problems that vex a weary world—nothing so cut and dried as that. Just wondering about—yes, you've guessed it—STYLES. For to a woman that's the subject nearest to her heart. Bless her, and it isn't for herself that she preens and primps and wants every minute to be in the very height of fashion. Not is it because Fashion says "Must!" It's because she knows that the styles will bring her something lovelier than ever before to add to her already wondrous charm. It's because she knows that a new style will, perhaps, make her more desirable in the eyes of the ONE MAN. It's because she knows that only in this way can she be the leader and the shining beacon which attracts all to its warming ray.

Woman may be called a capricious creature but, really, she's not. It's only because she follow's the whims and fancies of Dame Fashion that she's been dubbed so. For when Fashion's humor changes, who knows which way her pleasures will sway? No one, excepting perhaps the few who are destined to aid her in her search for "something different." One day it's the tight bodice and flowing sflirt, next time it's short skirts to show dimpled knees and no waist to speak of and sleck smooth hair. It's big hats, them small. Hoopskirts—and, perhaps, almost none at all—just a ruffle. Oodles of hair, your own and (secret!) "boughten" hair—then sheared close to show the lovely contour of the head. High heels and none at all. Bustles one minute, and then so tight skirts that one wonders how they can ever possibly go on. One day strictly, ultra feminine; next day looking so like Brother that it's hard to tell them apart.

But through it all ever runs the same refrain, "I want to be in Style." The Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Gardy have ever the same thought. One originates, the other imitates; but both achieve the same result, and both are looking toward the same goal.

True it is that some are so selfish that they follow Fashion for vanity's sake. But the most of them follow her because they want to be like the bird of paradise and "strut their stuff" before the chosen of their hearts.

It's a great game, this one of following Fashion. Sometimes it's a heart-breaking one.

And through it all runs the golden thread of Love. For without Love there'd be no Fashion. And who'd want to go through this world without ever making the acquaintance of H'l old Daniel Cupid? I wouldn't and you wouldn't either. So, when you see the faraway expression in some lovely thing's eyes just know she's planning what Fashion can give her to further her search for Love. And wish her well and help her along. And your interest may, perhaps, capture Dan Cupid's eye (if he hasn't already claimed you) and who knows what may happen! Love and Fashion—the two things nearest a woman's heart.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Some Ways to Treat Annoying Blisters

MANY a pretty girl has been humiliated by having an unsightly "fever blister." Any sore about the mouth, or, for that matter, an eruption anywhere on the face, is a source of embarrassment to the victim.

DR. COPELAND

Fever blisters are vesicles or blisters, usually located around the mouth. They appear on the nose or elsewhere on the surface of the body. No matter where they are situated the condition is called "herpes."

This condition, while it comes at any time of life, is most common in youth. It may accompany indigestion.

Following a prolonged visit to the dentist, there may be fever blisters about the mouth. There is more or less unavoidable bruising of the lips in the course of a long dental session. This does not mean infection, although, if the teeth and mouth are in bad condition, there is this danger.

It is quite the common thing to have herpes in the course of influenza, pneumonia and other infectious diseases accompanied by high fever. "Cold-sores" are of the same nature and follow the common cold.

You will notice discomfort and even pain in the lips or affected part. This continues for several hours and gradually the sore spot gets red and swollen. Then a few small blisters form on the surface. They are filled with clear fluid.

Pretty soon these blisters may run together. Then the contents become milky. Next they dry up, forming brown or yellow crusts. After a week or so the scab comes off, leaving a red spot which continues for a time. The whole process takes about 10 days.

Herpes isn't "catching" or infectious. Some persons seem to be predisposed to the trouble and are apt to have repeated attacks.

A discharging ear sometimes excites a similar condition on the lobe of the ear.

In children it may appear on the cheek. In rare instances it attacks the inside of the mouth, or even the eyes.

There are other attacks of herpes which seem to be a sort of reflex condition from some remote or nervous trouble. Tired men and women are liable to the trouble.

In the beginning of herpes the troubly may be headed off by applying some alcoholic lotion. Pure alcohol, spirits of camphor, borated alcohol, or cologne will serve this purpose.

Failing in your effort to abort the trouble, you should apply a powder of some sort. Boracic acid, bircarbonate of soda, and zinc oxide are useful.

Water and greases are harmful. The part should be kept dry. Saltpeter or alum applied to the sore spot will hasten its healing.

Keep your fingers off the sore spot. This is a good rule to follow all the time. The hands ought never to be applied to the face except when you wash it. Your hands come in contact with dirt, filth and germs. You cannot avoid picking up material which is capable of poisoning the delicate tissues of the face.

Recurring attacks of herpes about the mouth should excite your suspicion. They may be due to bad teeth, suppurating gums, diseased tonsils, suppuration in the nasal sinuses, gall bladder disease, or some other infection.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, June 8

MOST propitious is the rule of the stars on this day, under the benign aspects of both malefic and benefic planets, favorably placed with regard to Luna. It is a time for steadily moving forward under the high stimulus of Mars, aided by the diligence and perseverance of Saturn. This likewise assists those in employment toward their goal of ambition; and all should seek favors, advancement and preferment from those in authority, especially the elderly. Social, domestic, artistic and romantic affiliations should also thrive and give pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is may be at the threshold of a year of advancement, achievement and happiness in all relations of life. They should push toward this goal with courage, persistency and assurance. A child born on this day should be blessed with many talents and accomplishments making for its success, happiness and prosperity in life. It should work vigorously to win these.

Every man makes his own Fate and nothing is truer than that Character is Destiny.

—ANNA KINGSFORD.

For Rainy Days

Those liking gay raiment and accessories can choose an umbrella covered in silk whose all-over pattern matches that of the raincoat that accompanies it. Some covers are plain, having tri-tone novelty borders; other novelties are in plaid, striped or dotted designs. You Need More Than a Smile

By Edna Wallace Hopper

It's pleasant to know that your glistening white teeth fascinate and allure. But we who make an earnest study of health and youth preservation demand more than cleanliness. The enamel and gums must be protected.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

To assure the greatest precaution against wearing away of precious enamel I have had to understand personally the effects of the various ingredients of the tooth paste I use, which is called Quindent, the "five-in-one" dentifrice.

I am convinced that it not only cleanses and polishes the teeth perfectly, but it purifies the breath and, above all, counteracts the ever-present acids. This last protection is due to one of its most valuable properties—milk of magnesia, which I used to use separately as a mouth wash before expert scientists had produced Quindent.

Quindent is not a biting, sharp dentifrice. Its action is sure and mild. The taste is pleasant and I advise you to leave a slight coating of it on the gums and tongue, which is effective for hours.

You can obtain Quindent at any toilet counter, 50 cents for a large tube.

FOR THE LOVELORN

B.

DEAR MISS GALE:

As I write this I am at complete unrest with the world. I cannot decide what to do or how to look to the future. Conceited I am, like most boys, especially when I tell you that I have a way with girls that just sways them off their feet and into my grasp, to keep them a short while and love them and then leave them—heart-broken. I am made for love—and love is made for me. Even now I have a sweetheart; one as dear as all the world to me. Now, I love her with all my heart and soul and she loves me the same. But how can all this be terminated? Surely there is going to be a price to pay. What shall I do to avoid an unexpected disaster? I am just real youth, vibrating with happiness, love joy—just 21 years old. The kind of a boy most girls like. Tall, dark, manly, refined and easy to get along with. A college education and not a poor boy; yet I am somewhat discontented. I wonder why? Do you suppose it has been a case of having too much my own way? Well, that may be it, but one would think otherwise. I often wonder why girls are apt to be so agreeable with me? In fact, they fall so hard that they begin to refuse other dates just because they cannot have a good time with anyone else but me. This puzzles me, especially when I tell all my girl friends what to expect before long. Nevertheless, their thoughts of their immunity overcome all obstacles and they plunge headlong into the most disastrous of all youthful troubles—heartache. B.

What a tragedy it must be to be so devastating! Are you quite sure that all the girls you meet feel this way about you? Or may a part of it not be in your own imagination! You are quite right in saying I cannot be of much help to you. This feeling that life is meaningless is a phase of youth which you will outgrow.

Tomboy

DEAR MISS GALE:

I read your wonderful column and I think that you give wonderful advice. I am a young girl in my teens and I never went out with a boy, as I am too young. My mother is dead and I live with my father and brothers. I am treated very badly and I am often scolded if I play with my girl friends in the evening. My father has plenty of money, but will not buy me any clothes. My relatives beg me to ask father to dress me neatly, but he says that the times are bad and that I have enough clothes. I am considered good looking and I am popular, but I would be much prettier if I were dressed better. Now, Miss Gale, could you advise me in what way I could persuade father to dress me neatly? Wishing you oceans of luck. TOMBOY.

If you are sure your father can afford to dress you better, then tell him how you feel and that you are ashamed of your clothes at school. I am sure he will understand.

Two Lonesome Girls

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two lonesome girls, both at the same age. We neither pet, smoke nor drink. We know a girl wso is the same age and agrees with things we do. She has a fellow, and goes to dances and parties, and we are never invited, but when we are, we are never noticed. She is not a flapper, but the kind we like, Miss Gale. Think this over seriously for we have thought and thought, but cannot get it plain why we are not noticed. TWO LONESOME GIRLS.

Perhaps your friend has an easy, friendly manner that makes people like her. Watch her and see the reason for her charm. Perhaps you are a bit "stand-offish" and formal.

Trubles

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have been going with a fellow for the past three months. I like him very much, just at times. He's 21 and real good-looking. I am 17 and my friends say I am very attractive. He's always wanting to pet and jazz, of which I do not approve. He always wants me to go with him alone, but my parents will not allow me. Should I quit him or what? Please give me some advice. TRUBLES.

He doesn't seem to be very worth while, Trubles, so if I were you I should forget him.

EMANUEL READY FOR DEBUT

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — JUNE 7, 1928 — TWENTY-FIVE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Baseball Postponements Percentage Higher In June Than in April — Sixteen Games Blocked in Last Three Days — Emanuel Looks Like Winner Over McTigue—Grantham Not to Go East.

WHEN a number of games scheduled for April in the two major leagues were postponed on account of unfavorable weather, the old complaint was made again that the baseball season is annually opened too early.

Barney Dreyfuss.

But in view of recent developments, those who have been clamoring for later starts, in the belief that many postponements could be avoided, are probably now willing to concede that Barney Dreyfuss, for many years schedule maker for the National League, has always had the right dope in contending that the weather is a gamble at any time, and that it would be impossible to draw up a playing program for any particular period with the assurance that it would be favored by good conditions.

THE Pirate president has been borne out in his stand by the fact that the weather in May this year was almost as unfavorable to baseball as that of April, and that the conditions in June up to date have been even worse.

Consider only the present week, for instance. The Bucs themselves have been kept idle three days in succession, out of a total of 24 games booked for Monday, Tuesday and yesterday in the two big leagues no fewer than 16, or exactly two-thirds were postponed. "What is so rare as a day in June."

THOSE 16 postponements in the last three days make a total of 20 events knocked out since June arrived —11 in the National and 9 in the American—and as only six days have elapsed it will be seen that the percentage of games canceled in the month looked upon as the most ideal of the year has been greater than the percentage in April. Thirty-five games were postponed in the two leagues in the last 20 days in April, and 20 have been blocked in the first six days in June. Twenty-four were prevented in May. During the season to date, 79 games have been postponed, 42 in the National and 37 in the American, assuring a fat crop of double-headers later in the campaign.

MIKE McTIGUE, nearing the 36-year mark in age and an active ring figure since 1914, may reach the end of his fistic string in his 10-round bout with Armand Emanuel at Madison Square Garden in New York tonight.

Mike McTigue.

Last fall, McTigue announced that he would appear in only three more fights. Since then he has taken part in no fewer than 10, but his exhibitions as a rule have been merely defensive gestures.

Decisions cannot be won by that style of fighting, so if Mike does not uncover a great deal more aggressiveness than he has shown in the majority of his other bouts since he was beaten by Tommy Loughran in their title meeting last October he will have little chance of escaping a defeat on points tonight.

TONIGHT'S bout will be interesting chiefly because it is expected to furnish a line on the heavyweight possibilities of Emanuel.

WESTERNER TO MEET M'TIGUE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—Preceded by a reputation as a coming champion, Armand Emanuel, young California heavyweight will get his first Eastern test tonight in a 10-round battle with the veteral light heavyweight, Mike McTigue at Madison Square Garden.

Emanuel has engaged in 28 bouts on the coast without having lost a decision. His closest call came a few weeks ago when McTigue held him to a draw.

The youngster is not noted for his punch, rather has he won recognition and fame as a clever boxer and ringman.

McTigue will be pitting 15 years of experience and a fighting Irish heart against the youth of the westerners. He can hardly hope to equal the speed of Emanuel, and will have to depend on his punches.

Both men wound up their training yesterday at their respective quarters. Both are expected to weigh in well above the 175-pound mark.

Emanuel is the favorite for tonight. The coast heavyweight has plenty of speed while the Irish veteran is slipping. The general opinion is that Mike will have to make the most of the skill gained by long experience to save off a defeat.

Emanuel has hopes of following in the footsteps of Jim Corbett who rose to the championship from the same starting place—the gymnasium of the Olympic Club in San Francisco. Tonight's meeting with McTigue will go far toward showing whether the coast youngster has any of the qualities of his famous predecessor. The bout will start at 10 p. m. daylight time.

In the semi-final James J. Braddock, Jersey City light heavyweight, will meet Joe Monte, of Boston, in a return bout. The two met during the winter season and Braddock gained the decision.

Justice Rules Ring Show Not Worth $216

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—A Municipal Court justice has sustained Tex Rickard's contention that the Dempsey-Sharkey fight was not worth $216.43 of anybody's money.

The decision was contained in a ruling that Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Schafer, of Oklahoma City, were not damaged to the extent of $432.87 by not seeing the fight. The Schafers sued Rickard for that amount which included expenses as well as the price of their tickets, claiming they found the gates closed and could not get into the stadium after coming from Oklahoma to see the fight.

Rickard denied the fight was worth $216.43 and insisted the gates were open at the time the Oklahoma couple arrived and the court found for the promoter on this point.

JEWISH LAWYER-FIGHTER WHO HAS TAKEN DEMPSEY'S EYE

Emanuel is the former National amateur light-heavyweight champion, who has not been defeated during his brief but eminently successful professional career and is being touted as another Joe Choynski by the boxing sharps. He makes his Eastern ring debut tonight against the veteran Mike McTigue in Madison Square Garden, New York, and is the favorite to win. A bout with McTigue in California, Emanuel's home state, recently was declared a draw, but Emanuel was hailed the victor by the newspapers and the fans. Jack Dempsey is said to be interested in the management of the young Hebrew star.

Makes Bow In East

Burwell, New Pirate Pitcher, War Hero

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 7.—Ten years ago the coming September 12—a red-letter day in A. E. F. history—a bush-league pitcher was obscure in the Yankee legion that made up the infantry waves that swept over San Mihiel. Far from his native habitat as he took part in the strange and terrible business of war, the youngster didn't see much to encourage dreams of a big-league career. The Three Hundred and Fifty-third Infantry of the Eighty-ninth Division was going into action in the important sector, and the bush-league pitcher, still owned by dear old Joplin, Mo., was ready to do his part.

The German machine gun bullets began to spit and boys of the Middle Western division fell. The bush-league pitcher felt a stinging sensation in the big finger of his right hand—one of the pitching fingers. He looked at the digit and it seemed almost cut off at the joint. The

TO FINISH RACE

BUTLER, Pa., June 7.—The automobile race to be finished here Saturday afternoon will establish a precedent in that it will be the first event of its sort in the tri-state district to be run in to parts. It was started on Memorial Day, when rain caused a cessation of racing after almost half of the 100-mile distance had been covered. This grind will be completed and a preliminary event of 25 miles also may be arranged.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

IT SEEMS there was a horse named Fairway and he was favored to win the English derby. But he finished in the rough.

HEADING for another suspension. That's Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, who has just signed to box Hilario Martinez for a syndicate in Barcelona, Spain, which also is promoting the return bout between Paulino Uzcudun and George Godfrey. The battle is scheduled for July 7, and Joe and his manager, Max Waxman, are sailing June 16.

Apparently the worst thing that ever happened to Joe Dundee was winning the welterweight title. Before he annexed this bauble from Pete Latzo, just a little more than a year ago, he was a rip-snorting fighter who feared no one and made the fans like him. The moment he became champion he was placed on the defensive, with a title to protect and a manager to help him to protect it by throwing up safeguards all around him in the way of arranging for overweight matches, referees who could be trusted, etc.

The result is that Joe now has managed to have himself barred in so many states that he is going to Europe to find some new spots in which to be barred. Meanwhile he is likely to leave behind him a nice, new, fresh suspension, the gift of the New York Athletic Commission to commemorate his walking out on its newest logical contender, Sammy Baker, who won a questionable decision over Nick Testo recently to prove that he is a great challenger.

DUNDEE'S case by no means is an exceptional one. Mike McTigue was a fairly good fighter before he defeated Battling Siki to win the light-heavyweight title and then he was a safety-first dud until he lost the crown to Paul Berlenbach, whereupon he came back with renewed vigor to become a menace in the heavyweight division.

Many other good fighters have been ruined by winning championships, trading fair money and frequent winning bouts for a title and long periods or idleness or indifferent fighting—in short, for a mess of pottage.

THERE are ways and ways of getting publicity. For instance, there is C. C. Pyle's way. Yesterday the story was broadcast from New York that he and Red Grange had come to the parting of the ways. And now comes the reply from Grange in Chicago that he knows nothing about it. That's keeping in print two days handrunning.

By the way, if you ever find

RIDICULES BURRUS, GOOCH DEAL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 7.—If rain doesn't upset their plans again, the Pirates and Braves will tangle this afternoon in the local wigwam. The Bush-whackers are straining at the leash after three days of enforced idleness and they would like nothing better than to let off steam by hammering a lot of official baseballs into the closeup seats recently erected in what was a real ball lot.

Manager Bush of the Pirates will stick by his original pitching selection for the opener whenever it may be played. Carmen Hill is all set for mound duty, and his mates, many of whom are fed up on bridge, are eager to don the uniforms.

BURRUS NOT NEEDED

Rumors of efforts on the part of Manager Hornsby to put through a deal with the Pirates involving Catcher Johnny Gooch of the Bucs and Dick Burrus, Boston first sacker, seem to be all wrong. The acquisition of George Sisler by the Braves automatically knocked Burrus out of a job, and as Hornsby is anxious to strengthen his catching department by getting some assistance for Zach Taylor, it was understood here that he has approached the Pirate management with the idea in mind of giving the Bucs Dick for Gooch.

It can hardly be said that the Pirates are in a panic for gateway tenders, with Grantham, Harris and Pete Scott on the list, all capable of handling the first base job in fine style.

At any rate, Manager Donie Bush has spiked the rumors of the trade by stating that he would not consider such a deal for a moment.

The Pirates made a slight gain on the league leading Reds as they loitered about yesterday, thanks to Uncle Robbie and his boys the Rhinelanders were taken down a peg or two; neverless they are still nine full games ahead of the sixth place Buccos, who also seem to face a problem in holding to their present position.

BRAVES PRESS BUCS

The Braves are only one and one half games below the Pirates. That means they could push the Buccos into seventh position by winning two ball games in succession. This achievement will be quite hard to put over, if the humor of the Pittsburgh players is a real indication. The Buccos are out to win every game they can and apparently they will do everything within the law to accomplish their desire.

There seems to be a feeling here-

CRACK HORSES ENTERED IN AMERICAN DERBY

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP.)—Twelve of 15 of the prize 3-year-old stake winners of the nation, including several participants in the recent Kentucky derby, are expected to start in the $25,000 American Derby at Arlington Park Saturday.

Misstep, runner-up in the Kentucky derby, and winner of the Fairmount derby last week, is a general favorite, while Reigh Olga, Jack Higgins, Toro and Strolling Player also have a large field of backers. The distance will be 1¼ miles.

Strolling Player, owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson's Salubria stable, is the latest entry. Nearly 100,000 fans are expected to watch the derby.

U.S. Loses Aquatic Star

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 7.—(AP.)—Duke Kahanamoku, Hawaiian swimmer and outstanding figure in America's swimming triumphs, in the last three Olympics, has announced that he has abandoned his plans for a fourth trip under Uncle Sam's athletic banners. He has signed a motion picture contract.

The "Duke" was expected to be a central figure in this year's Olympic games swims. Although he has put behind him 16 years of competition, the famous Hawaiian still ranks among the first in swimming and was expected to make the team in the 100 meters event.

NOTES of the BOXERS

JIM McGIRR, of McKeesport, is one person who is satisfied with the rainy weather of this week. He is hoping the clouds will spend themselves and permit Old Sol to warm up matters in time for his initial outdoor boxing show of the season at Cycler Park, McKeesport, next Monday night. Nothing hurts an outdoor show gate worse than a postponement, unless it is two or more postponements, and McGirr wants to get off on the right foot.

Larry Brignolia is training in Erie for his windup battle in McGirr's arena with Joey LaGrey, and LaGrey is putting on the finishing touches in New York, where he boxes Harry Wallace in a 10-round bout tomorrow night.

Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight, boxes Bobby Burns at the Coney Island Stadium tomorrow night and has been promised a bout with Jimmy McLarnin in Madison Square Garden, June 21, if he wins.

The boxing show headed by a bout between Billy Light and Young Jack Thomson, scheduled at Chicago tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow night because of a flooded field, which has prevented workmen from installing the ring and seats.

An all-star card of four 10-round bouts has been arranged for the Montreal baseball Park next Wednesday night. Tony Canzoneri, featherweight champion, will meet Vic Foley of Vancouver in the windup and other bouts will show George Chabot of Montreal against Joe Trabon of Denver, Bobby Garcia against Bert Brown and Benny Schwartz against Tommy Ryan, former McKeesport bantamweight.

Jack Barry boxes Steve Brodie of Buffalo in the semi-final to a battle between Chick Suggs and Johnny Ryan at Erie tomorrow night.

Howard Mayberry of Duluth and formerly of Pittsburgh and Monte Sirko have been matched to box the main bout of a show at Washington, Pa., next Monday night.

Reed Brown, who has just signed Frank Monroe, the middleweight, to a two-year contract, has matched him for a 10-round bout with Mickey Fedor at Alliance, O., next Tuesday night.

SCHOOL TRACK MEET TODAY

The fifteenth annual athletic championship meet of the local high schools will be staged in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock, in conjunction with a grade school meet for boys and girls.

Nineteen senior and junior schools are entered in the high school meet, which includes 22 events. Thirteen events make up the grade school competition.

Pitt Team Local Entry

By JESS CARVER.

ANOTHER team championship and further Olympic rating is just a step or two ahead of Dink Templeton and his Stanford Cardinals, I. C. A. A. A. A. and Pacific Coast track and field champions, as they prepare to seek the team trpohy to be awarded for the first time at the National Intercollegiates at Chicago tomorrow and Saturday.

Don Gwinn

It is difficult to forsee any other outcome in the matter of point grabbing in this final national collegiate track carnival of the year other than one tinged with the Cardinal colors. Illinois, Big Ten champion, will probably walk away with second place, but the Illini, for all their strength, are not as powerful as is the 16-man Stanford squad.

Touching on the meet itself, it is apparent that the event is going to hold equal rank with the I. C. 4-A.'s this year, especially if the athletes are granted the boon of fair weather tomorrow and Saturday. Rain spoiled the performances at Boston two weeks ago and made the general run of times and distances only fair.

PITT STARS ENTERED

The Pittsburgh district will have a single team entered in the meet, Pitt's four-man squad doing the honors for the section. Three of the four who will compete for Pitt this year won places last year, one of them taking a first. Don Gwinn, Gibby Welch, Ken Wibecan and Vic Pickard are booked to depart for Chicago tonight. Last year, Gwinn won the N. C. A. A. hammer throw with a heave of only 155 feet 9 inches, a mark he has broken consistently this year. Welch was third in the discus in 1927 with a heave of 143 feet five inches. Wibecan ran fifth in the 100. Pickard, with a strained shoulder, went unplaced in the pole vault.

Pitt's scoring chances are much better than they were for last year's meet. In the place of the nine points registered in '27, the locals snould be good for at least a dozen or 13 this week-end. And if Pickard is able to win the pole vault, which he is very likely to do, the four-man Pitt squad will be very much in the running for third honors.

FORT MIAMI READY FOR BANNER MEET

TOLEDO, June 7.—The Ft. Miami course, where the Grand Circuit season will be inaugurated, June 25, is fairly alive with horses being prepared for the speed festival.

Trainers are arriving every day. The latest to get in are George Loomis, Minnaopolis; Charley Valentine, Columbus, O.; Will Fleming, Winnipeg, Can.; Rupe Parker, Smithville, Mo.; Gabe Cartnal, Hanover, O., and Dick Rogers, Concord, N. C.

In the Loomis string is the veteran pacing gelding, Sir Roch, 1:59¾, joint holder of the sidewheeling record for his sex. He is the favorite for the $25,000 Page Dairy to be raced at the second Grand Circuit carnival here, July 9-14.

WOMEN GOLFERS PLAY

Women golfers will engage in a one-day medal play tournament at the Oakmont Country Club today. Oakmont will oppose Pittsburgh Field Club, Stanton Heights will play against Fox Chapel and Edgewood will vie with Allegheny in team matches.

SPECIAL MATCH TO TEST STAR

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP.)—A preliminary spectacle of the national open golf championship and one that will give some inkling of whether Archie Compston can play in America as he did at home in defeating Walter Hagen, 18 and 17, is a match between Compston and Aubrey Boomer over Park Ridge course with Jock Hutchison and Alfred Hackbarth.

The contest is to be played on Sunday, June 17, four days before the national open starts at Olympia fields.

Amos Celebrates Graduation by Marriage

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 7.—William Enlow (Bill) Amos, Wash-Jeff's all-America fullback, is a benedict. Graduating from the institution at the annual commencement yesterday, Amos celebrated the occasion last night by wedding Miss Dora M. Polan, daughter of Samuel Polan, a local merchant. Amos and Miss Polan were participants in a double wedding, the other couple being Miss Marie Polan and Ivan F. Forgie of Washington.

The celebrated football star and his bride left on a honeymoon from which they will return to live in Washington.

Amos has been the outstanding backfield star of the Presidents for the past four years, and was regarded by many as the premier fullback of America. His most noteworthy performance of the 1927 season was participation in the game at San Francisco in the East-West game.

PIRATES

abouts that the Braves in their makeup are quite a ball club. Indeed, the writers are all worked up over Hornsby's entry and quite naturally their views are getting into the public prints with the result that the populace is reflecting the opinions.

The general contention is that the Tribe will get "somewhere" provided the pitching measures up to the other departments of the club.

The feeling on the part of local fans that the Braves are going to get some place in the pennant chase is not without foundation. As has been pointed out previously, the Boston lineup as it now stands is a really dangerous offensive machine, and given the right sort of hurling, would have to be classed with the best in the league. Sisler has provided a terrific punch, and with Bell, Hornsby, Brown, Moore and Richbourg all clubbing the ball at a fair rate, the Bostonians are likely to break out in a rash of victories at any moment.

Defensively, the team appears to be fair, with a snappy infield and capable outfield strength. Richbourg, Brown and Eddie Moore may not be the best outfielders in the league, but they are not the worst, and what is more, the punch they supply at the plate more than makes up for the few delinquencies that may be found in their fielding.

The Pirates now have been gone from Pittsburgh the biggest part of a week, yet they have played only one game, that was a corker, the 14 inning fight with the Dodgers adding much to the spirit of the slumping club. If the weather is propitious for the remainder of the week in Boston the two clubs will crowd four battles into three days, a bargain bill being carded on the cards for Saturday.

The One Hundred and Third Engineers Regiment, of Philadelphia, has sent in a number of entries for the military track and field championship meet to be held at the University of Pittsburgh Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Quaker City regiment will have a relay team in the military title contest, and the members of the team will also compete in the folowing events:

Sergt. Lawrence Burns, 100 and 220-yard dashes and running broad jump; Private Raymond Ward, 100 and 220-yard dashes and broad jump; Private J. J. McDonnell, shot-put; relay, Burns, Ward, Howell McConnell and J. J. McDonnell.

LEVINSKY BEATS ROCCO

AKRON, June 7. — (INS.)—Battling Levinsky of Philadelphia, former light-heavy weight champion and veteran of nearly 500 ring battles, was the victor over Emmet Rocco of Ellwood City, Pa., in a 10-round bout here last night. Rocco landed frequently on Levinsky's head in the early rounds but Battler gave him a bad body beating in the late stanzas. Levinsky did not force himself to ward off Rocco's attack and hardly exerted himself to gain the decision.

Dr. Gregg Seniors' Victor

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 7.—Dr. George T. Gregg, of the Oakmont Country Club, veteran district golfer of note, captured the first annual seniors championship of Western Pennsylvania at the Pleasant Valley Country Club, near here, yesterday, when he scored a net 74. His victory was quite deserving, for the first competition of the sort ever to be held in this district was marred by bad weather almost throughout.

John Hughes, optimistic optimist of the Highland Country Club, ranked second with his net 76, while George A. Ormiston, of Oakmont, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, under whose auspices the event was staged, and Dr. W. T. Messmore, Uniontown Country Club, tied with net 77s.

So far as the gross scoring was concerned, Dr. Gregg also was the low man, getting a 77, George Ormiston being second with an 82 and John Hughes third with an 88.

While inclement weather rather cut down the field, those who did play through the rain agreed that it was one of the most satisfactory tournaments staged thus far, and it is expected to develop into one of the most popular in the district.

The leading scores follow:

time hanging heavily on your hands and want to assassinate some of it, here is a good argument that should stand up for hours:

"Did Pyle make Red Grange or did Red Grange make Pyle?"

When you settle that, you can proceed to wonder how two such astute gentlemen as Pyle and Grange could hook themselves on such a collosal flop as the bunion derby of recent memory.

THIS column is on its way to a championship of some sort. So far, it has not taken advantage of the appearance of the Scottish Rangers soccer team in the Pitt Stadium Saturday as an excuse to get off any alleged Scotch jokes. That ought to be worth a ticket to the game, for the temptation, it must be admitted, has been great.

WE have in our midst an Indian runner of parts who is anxious to broadcast a challenge directed at any of the ankle mechanics of this section who would like to match their speed against his. He is George Parsano, of Oklahoma, a member of the Choctaw tribe, 38 years old, and a veteran of the United States Army, having been with the First Cavalry on the Mexican border for eight years and also served an enlistment in the Philippines. He has been here about a year, but is just making his identity as a runner known.

The Indian has starred over the 15 and 20-mile routes and believes he can outrun our best. He plans to enter whatever local runs are scheduled and to accept any challenge races and may turn out to be quite an attraction. He may be reached at 1400 Wylie avenue, where he resides. He is employed by Booth & Flinn, the contractors.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

WEATHER permitting, and that is saying a lot at this time, the Allegheny County League will swing into action this evening for the first time since last Thursday with two games carded.

Beltzhoover will play host to the Homewood-Brushton nine and it is expected that Heinie Boll will have the boys out there fighting following that last game at McKinley Park when everything went wrong.

Bellevue will meet Dormont at the North Boro grounds. This should be an interesting tilt.

THINGS are becoming interesting in the County League. One manager was elated last evening, stating that his team had not lost a game this week, nor won one either. But it is an assured fact that when the weather man opens up there is going to be some hectic struggles in the district.

MANAGER Bill McCrady, of the St. John's Lyceum nine has carded the first double-header of the season for Saturday. In the afternoon the Canton team of the O. and P. League will oppose the City Leaguers. The twilight session will find Book Shoe meeting Elmer Smith's charges in a league encounter.

On Sunday afternoon, the House of David nine will be the attraction at Sullivan Field. With three attractions of this type the followers of the Strip outfit have no kick regarding the class of talent McCrady is bringing for attractions. The appearance of Canton should bring a bumper crowd.

DUQUESNE Steel nine will be the attraction at Stewart avenue on Sunday, meeting the Jordans. The Mon-Yough outfit will flash a stellar bunch of ball players against the Falconer crowd and the fans should see the usual well-played game on the hill.

PITTSBURGH SCREW AND BOLT nine is looking for games home and abroad. The team is playing in the light first-class division. Twilight and Saturday ball games are wanted at home, with Sunday on the road. Call Cedar 2039-J and ask for Ed.

bullet did not entirely cut off the top of the finger, but the joint folded over after the manner of a knife half shut and that's the way it is now as the "busher," his big league dream realized, awaits the order to pitch his first game for the Pirates. Private Bill Burwell, front and center.

The new Pirate pitcher displays a remarkable finger as a result of his war injury. Instead of rushing to a first aid station or going to a hospital he stayed with his outfit in the lines for 12 days. Then he was taken to a field hospital for treatment and later to a base hospital. Medical surgery failed to straighten out the mangled finger and today the top joint is doubled sidewise as Bill hurls the baseball.

"I really believe the position of the finger helps my 'sinker,' but I also feel that it impairs my curve," said Burwell. "Anyhow, I had a better curve when I went to the Army than I have now."

Bill did not speak about his wound until it was noted in the Pirate camp. Of a retiring nature, his presence in a baseball squad is hardly noted. But the quiet chap had some tough experiences in the war.

DONNELLI SURE TO PLAY FOR LOCALS

By TOM BIRKS

READY for the battle with Western Pennsylvania's soccer select at Pitt Stadium Saturday afternoon the Glasgow Rangers' party arrived in Pittsburgh this morning looking as fit as the proverbial fiddle and eager to mix with the representatives of the Steel City.

The famous Scottish club with its entire membership on hand was met by the reception committee of the Western Pennsylvania football association and the Clan Grant soccer club of Donora, the sponsors of the game.

President Fairfield, John Watson, William J. Kerr, Dave Herron, and Tom Henderson of Donora officially welcomed the visitors to Pittsburgh at the Union Station. Then the most valuable cavalcade in soccer talent was escorted to the Hotel Roosevelt which will be the headquarters of the team during its stay in the city.

The Clan Grant club is holding a reception and dance at the hotel tomorrow evening, and at this affair which will be attended by the entire roster of the visitors. Local fans will have a chance to become acquainted with Sciota's great soccer team.

It is reported that the advance sale of the tickets for the game has exceeded expectations, and that the game, which will start at 5:30 Daylight saving time will be watched by the greatest crowd in local history.

There have been rumors to the effect that "Buff" Donnelli might be missing from the lineup owing to the possibility of his amateur status being involved. However the famous Heidelberg star was assured that nothing could hurt his status in the game which is purely an exhibition affair and he will be on hand, trying to beat Hamilton the great goalkeeper of the Rangers. The Duquesne University football captain is without a doubt the greatest American born soccer shot in the country, and it will be interesting to watch his duels with Hamilton.

The commission appointed by the West Penn Football Association to act in conjunction with Clan Grant in the staging of the game will hold its final meeting this evening at the Hotel Roosevelt. Chairman Kerr asks that all tickets must be accounted for by members of the commission at this session. All members should be on hand at 7 p. m.

sive career, besides the attention he attracted through being sponsored by Jack Dempsey. He won the National amateur heavyweight championship in Boston in 1926, and since he has never received worse than a draw in 27 fights.

He is not advertised as being a great hitter, but he has 12 knockouts to his credit nevertheless.

McTigue was given a draw in a meeting with Emanuel in California some time ago, but it is hard to see how he can escape defeat tonight.

It looks like a victory for Emanuel on points and aggressiveness with the bout going the limit.

IT MAY not be seasonable to bring up the subject of hockey, particularly as Pittsburgh is no longer an active figure in major circles of the ice sport, but the fans of this district no doubt will be interested to learn that Sprague Cleghorn of the Boston team, brother of Odie, the former Pirate manager, is to be shipped to the minors. The Bruins have asked waivers on the veteran defense man, and it is believed that he will be placed as manager of a minor league team, possibly a Boston farm.

ONE of hockey's oldest and most familiar figures will pass when Cleghorn goes. He left the amateur ranks before he was 20 and played 20 years in the professional division. Cleghorn was on two world champion teams, the Montreal Wanderers and Les Canadiens.

Sprague Cleghorn.

He belonged to the old school of defense players and was one of the most feared men in the league for 12 years when rough stuff was in style.

CLARENCE MITCHELL, southpaw spitballer, recently dropped by the tail-end Phillies and signed by the Cards, made a promising beginning yesterday when given his first chance.

Relieving Grover Alexander in the third inning with the score 5 to 0 against him, he held the Giants to one run and three hits in seven innings, and won out because ex-Pirate Vic Aldridge had to be lifted in the seventh and Jim Faulkner and Jim Chaplin were not equal to the contract of holding the game safe.

But any new encouragement that Mitchell's showing may have brought to Bill McKechnie and his club was offset by the demonstrated that Alexander is still off his stride.

It was Alex's first start in more than two weeks, but two innings sufficed to make it celar that a kink is still loitering in his pitching arm.

THE chance of George Grantham's being able to rejoin the Buccaneers before they return from their present Eastern trip is remote. Before President Barney Dreyfuss left for New York last night to attend the National League meeting called for today by League Chief John A. Heydler, he was informed by the doctor attending Grantham that the first-sacker must carry his right hand in a sling for at least another week. How soon after that the condition of George's broken finger will enable him to return to the game is a question, but present indications are he will not be able to play again until the team comes home. Joe Harris and Lee Meadows, the other cripples, left behind with Grantham, are making little progress toward recovery.

HERB PENNOCK and George Pipgras have pitched exactly half of the Yankees' 36 victories and are charged with only one fourth of their eight defeats. Each of these hurlers has won nine games and lost only one.

Pennock equaled the record of Pipgras by beating Cleveland yesterday, and the two are tied for the chance of being the first hurler in the majors to win 10 games. Pipgras gets the first opportunity, as Pennock pitched yesterday.

George Grantham.

The records of Pennock and Pipgras are all the more remarkable because they have been made in complete games. Pennock has tied Larry Benton of the Giants by pitching 10 games without being taken out, and Pipgras, in the same number of games, has not been lifted once.

George Uhle of Cleveland was once a seemingly unbeatable hoodoo to the Yankees, but yesterday's defeat was the third straight he has suffered this year at the hands of Pennock.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE glass industry is meeting foreign competition by the development of more modern machinery. Three years ago the encroachment on markets in this country by Belgian producers of plate glass reached an acute stage. Plate glass prices were reduced 25 per cent. This cut and others made since have amounted to 60 per cent of the early 1925 quotations. Similar difficulties were encountered by the makers of window glass.

IMPROVEMENT has been shown in window glass this year. On May 11 price advances averaging 10 per cent were put into effect. Sales are now good. Consumption is greater than production and manufacturers' stocks are being reduced. Early this year an attempt was made to increase the price of plate glass but this failed, due to lack of co-operation among the manufacturers. Plate glass is in a seasonal slump. Demand from automobile makers, who are the largest customers, is light, due to changes being made in models.

THE popularity of the closed automobile is having much to do with the changes being made in the plate glass industry. Up to about seven years ago the predominant market for plate glass was for large store fronts. The demand for smaller pieces of glass was supplied from the breakage in production. Then came the closed car. The sale of small sizes for use on automobiles became the leading factor in the business.

MAKERS of plate glass expanded their capacities greatly to meet this demand. Old production methods were still followed by most in the trade. At first the price structure made it profitable to cut large sizes of glass to supply the automobile makers. In recent years foreign competition and the discovery of new processes have made the manufacture of automobile glass by the old methods unprofitable. Many producers have found themselves with equipment for supplying a demand for large sizes of glass while the great market is for smaller sizes.

THE Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, the Ford Motor Company, and Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company all have developed new production methods which make narrow widths of glass in a continuous strip. A prominent engineer has estimated the saving in costs of one of the modern plants at 15 cents a square foot.

THE Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has made its most modern installation at its Creighton plant. In addition to supplying the demand for automobile glass at low costs this equipment can make plate glass one-eighth of an inch thick. The former minimum thickness for the regular commercial production of plate glass was one-fourth of an inch. Glass of this weight was too heavy for use in residences since specially designed sashes were required. The new thin glass opens the field of small residences for the installation of plate glass.

THE Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is spending $5,500,000 at the Ford City plant for improvements. Most of the new equipment will be for grinding and polishing. This company is also entering the field of shatter proof glass through the formation of the Pittsburgh Safety Glass Company, which is building a factory at Creighton. The new organization is jointly owned by Pittsburgh and the du Pont Viscoloid Company. The safety glass to be known as Duplate will be made from sheets of glass joined by a pyroxylin plastic to be supplied by du Pont Viscoloid Company.

THE Standard Plate Glass Company recently completed arrangements for the installation of more modern equipment at one of its plants. This company has shown losses from operations in recent years due to the general condition of the industry and the fact that it had not been in a position to change its production methods to meet new conditions.

THE American Window Glass Company has placed ten fourcault machines in operation at one plant. This was a new departure for this organization. In the past production was confined to the cylinder process, which it originally perfected.

VERDICT GIVEN CALIF. BANK

A verdict awarding $9,182.92 to the Security Trust and Savings Bank, of Los Angeles, Cal., was returned in Federal Court in the suit brought by the bank against John Elder, Jr., executor of the estate of George W. Patterson, of New Castle, Pa. The jury did not leave the box and acted under instructions from Judge Robert M. Gibson in returning a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. Patterson died in May, 1927, and it was brought out that he owned a large block of stock in the American Aluminum and Metal Company, which had failed after borrowing money from the branch of the Los Angeles bank at Burbank, Cal. The suit was brought to recover a pro rata share of the indebtedness of the aluminum company assessed against Patterson as a stockholder.

"NERVES" PULL STOCK PRICES LOWER

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP.)—Reactionary tendencies predominated in today's stock market despite repeated efforts of pools to revive bullish enthusiasm. Extreme nervousness over the political and credit situations led to heavy liquidation of stocks by frightened investors and speculators, and aggressive short selling on the part of the professional element. Rails were heavy throughout, while the rallies in the industrial group failed to hold.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent, as against 6½ yesterday, and then dropped to 5½. Lower call money, however, was no longer a bull market. Six per cent time money made its appearance for the first time in years, although the ruling rate was 5⅝ to 5¾ per cent. Fears that federal reserve rediscount rates would shortly be increased to 5 per cent were an important factor in the selling movement. Several of the large commission houses advised their customers to restrict commitments, or withdraw from the market until after the presidential conventions.

Violent recessions took place in some of the high priced specialties for which there is a thin market. Adams Express, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Case Threshing Machine and American Express were hammered 8 to nearly 11 points below yesterday's final quotations while Lambert, Manhattan Electrical Supply, General Asphalt common and preferred, National Tea, American Linseed and International Telephone sold down 3 to nearly 5 points.

Radio dropped from an early high of 201 to 182⅛, rebounded to 197 and then sold off again. General Motors fell from 192¾ to 189⅝.

A few issues showed consistent strength. Coty ran up 12 points to a new peak at 188 and Freeport Texas responded to the declaration of the regular dividend and reports of record-breaking May output by climbing 4 points to 74. Gimbel Bros. was in good demand on reports of expanding earnings.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The raw sugar market was firm early today, but no sales were reported and prices were unchanged at 4.30c for Cuban duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened firm at advances of 1 to 5 points on covering and renewed buying by houses with Cuban connections, prompted by the steadier spot market and expectations of an increased demand for refined as a result of the warmer weather. There was liquidation or realizing on the upturn, however, and reactions followed, with prices at midday 2 points net higher to 2 lower. The maximum declines were in the new crop months. They seemed to reflect reports of a larger yield in Cuba next year and the increased estimate of the Java crop now harvesting. It is placed at 2,700,000 tons, against previous estimates of 2,589,000 tons and last year's crop of 2,359,000 tons.

In refined prices were unchanged at 6.05 @6.10c for fine granulated, with a better withdrawal demand.

SLUMP IN COKE CHECKED

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 7.—The Courier says: Except for the halt in the curtailment of production at the ovens of the furnace interests in the Connellsville region the regional total would have reached a still lower level last week. The merchant producers applied about the same rate of reduction that had been practiced a week earlier, but the shift at furnace plants was so pronounced as to transform the very heavy loss of the preceding week into a slight gain, thus checking for the time being at least the downward trend which has been in progress since the week ended April 7.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, June 2, was 44,120 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 15,700, a decrease of 260 tons; Lower Connellsville, 28,420, an increase of 620 tons, or a net increase of 360 tons, as compared with a total decrease of 10,020 tons during the week preceding.

The market is quotable as follows:

Spot furnace	$2.65@$2.75
Spot furnace	$3.75@$4.25

Monthly averages of spot coke prices this year have been:

January	$2.70	$4.00
February	2.68	4.00
March	2.70	4.00

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 7.—Decided setbacks in the price of wheat today followed reports of rains in the northwest, especially Canada. According to some advices, the Canadian crop is now two weeks ahead of last year. Opening 1¼c to 3c down, wheat rallied a little, and then dropped lower than before. Corn, oats and provisions weakened also, with corn starting ⅝c to 1¼c off, and later continuing to sag.

At noon, wheat was 3⅝c to 3¾c net lower and corn 1⅝c to 2⅜c off.

On the downward swing of the wheat market today, numerous standing orders to sell on stop losses took effect. Bearish sentiment here meanwhile was given special emphasis by messages saying that at some points in Canada, notably Calgary, steady rain had been falling for 15 hours. Furthermore, Liverpool wheat quotations instead of being higher as expected, showed substantial declines.

Crop reports too from the American northwest today were less pessimistic than has been the rule of late. Authoritative unofficial advices said that although as a whole conditions at present are unsatisfactory, a good average crop can apparently be secured if there is sufficient moisture within a short time. Dispatches from winter wheat territory southwest, especially Kansas, said weather conditions were perfect.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Further Ease in Call Money.

The money market eased back further today to 5½ per cent, influenced by the heavy offerings of funds attracted by the higher rates of the past several days. Rather widespread liquidation in the stock market this week has released a portion of the credit in use as brokerage accommodation and this has served to increase the volume available at the money center. Loan renewals today were at 6 per cent and there was considerable uncertainty in the stock market until the 5½ per cent figure favoring the long position and had the effect of stemming the selling tide which got under way near the close last night. On the whole the Street expects easier money in the coming months, basing the opinion on the fact that the Treasury's latest offering was short-term paper and at the highest rate in years. The opinion is that this indicates the Treasury's expectation of lower money later this year. However, Secretary Mellon declined to discuss money market today, saying that the opportunity to be misconstrued is too great to permit him to remark on these subjects. The time money market at 5⅝@6 per cent, quoted this morning for 60 and 90 days, was at a new high since 1923. The quotation for four to six months was also at new high levels at 5⅝@5¾ per cent for those maturities.

Bradstreet's says: "While stock market activity was a shade less than in the record month of March—and there was one less business day in May than in the earlier month—bank clearings at 127 leading cities of the United States showed an aggregate larger than in any preceding month in the country's history. The lesson of the stock market showing in May, in fact, seems to be that, allowing for the absence of Saturday's trading throughout most of the month and the shortening of the sessions by an hour a day for a week, the volume of stock trading was really heavier in May than in March. The total bank clearings for May were $57,196,080,000, which was an advance of 12 per cent over April, of 3.6 per cent over March and of 31.9 per cent over May a year ago. Stock sales on the New York Exchange for May were 82,163,544 shares, a decrease of only 3.3 per cent from March and a gain of 76 per cent over May, 1927. Clearings at New York were $36,704,987,000, a gain of 35 per cent over March, whereas at the other 126 cities combined, the total was $20,491,093,000, a gain over March of only 4 per cent."

Taking Public Into Partnership.

An important transition is taking place in the ownership of American business in the widespread conversion of privately owned closed corporations into companies whose shares have been distributed among the investing public. One question which is frequently asked is why do the controlling interests willingly let even a minority stake go if the picture is as bright as the security vendors paint it. The answer is that in practice the retained 60 per cent interest frequently becomes of as great a realization value after public financing as the 100 per cent interest in a private, closed corporation. Outside underwriting by a responsible banking firm gives the stock an added value in the minds of the public. The fact that an open market is made for the security, which becomes liquid, heightens its worth at the market place. When such "sell outs" were relatively new, a few years ago, old timers cynically regarded the device as a means of unloading on the unsuspecting public. Of course, each public issue must be judged on its special facts, yet the record of recent years shows that the vast majority of such underwritings, when placed by discriminating investment bankers, proved profitable to venturesome investors. Such shares as Macy's, Abraham & Straus, the May Department Stores, the F. W. Woolworth Company and Postum Cereal, proved bonanzas to the original subscribers. The most recent local example of taking the public into partnership was the offering of shares of Joseph Horne Company by J. H. Holmes & Co. The latter offered 40,000 common shares of Horne's which was snapped up on a demand which was said to have oversubscribed the issue 10 times over.

The company is also engaged in the manufacture of mechanical accessories for automobiles.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 7—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 2 to 4 points and sold about 11 to 13 points net higher in early trading on covering or rebuying by some of yesterday's sellers, who appeared to be influenced by relatively firm Liverpool cables.

Early weather reports were favorable, however, and brought in enough selling to check the advance around 20.67c for October, prices at the end of the first hour showing reactions of about 10 points from the best.

Private cables said there had been London and continental buying in the Liverpool market, and an improved cloth inquiry from India, although the cloth auctions at Shanghai had been disappointing.

Prices based on a favorable view of the weather forecasts, with October selling off to 20.50c, or 7 to 5 points below yesterday's closing quotations on the active months. This dip brought in a little more buying, which seemed to include some trade demand and covering. Prices at midday were steady at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

ARKANSAS GAS HOLDS GAIN

Quiet trading was noted again on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the volume holding to about the levels of yesterday and prices showing only slight changes from those prevailing earlier in the week.

The Arkansas Gas issues held at or near their recently attained levels with the preferred stock continuing in favor as a result of the initial quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent declared yesterday.

Lone Star Gas showed no change but continued to give evidence of the support noted on all bids below the 54 level. Miscellaneous manufacturing shares were in moderate supply but the small offerings were well taken on slight fractional recessions.

Carnegie Metals were firm around 25, the best price this week and a gain of 1½ points over last week's average figure.

There was a little trading in the glass stocks, but no changes of importance were recorded. Consolidated Ice moved ahead a point on demand stimulated by the approach of the company's profitable season.

In the late market a sale of Carnegie Metals was made at 23½, cancelling the early gain, while Arkansas Gas common eased off to 3. Arkansas preferred, however, held well up to the best levels of the movement.

THE BANK OF PITTSBURGH, N. A., Trustee

For information regarding Frick-Reid Supply Corporation and the proposed issue of Debentures we refer to the letter from Mr. W. E. Frick, who is to become President of the Corporation. Mr. Frick has summarized some of the statements in said letter as follows:

BUSINESS: Frick-Reid Supply Corporation will be organized under the laws of Pennsylvania to acquire the assets and business of Frick-Reid Supply Company, established in 1905 and of Frick & Lindsay Company, established in 1892. Both companies are engaged in distributing equipment and supplies for drilling and operating oil and gas wells and for pipe lines, refineries and pumping stations. Frick & Lindsay Company has also conducted a large business in industrial supplies for contractors, mines and mills.

The combined companies operate a total of 48 stores, warehouses and yards, serving the important oil fields in the Eastern and Mid-Continent fields and located in the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Wyoming. The products handled include drilling machinery, tools, tubular goods, gas engines, pumps and sundry supplies. The companies are the sole representatives of a number of large and important manufacturers.

PURPOSE: The proposed $3,000,000 Fifteen-Year 6% Debentures are to be issued in accordance with the terms of a Plan of Merger or Consolidation of Frick & Lindsay Company and Frick-Reid Supply Company, which provides among other things for the retirement of $300,000 mortgage debt of Frick & Lindsay Company and $3,000,000 7% Preferred Stock of Frick-Reid Supply Company.

EARNINGS: For the three years ended December 31, 1927, the combined earnings of Frick & Lindsay Company and Frick-Reid Supply Company, available for interest on the proposed Debentures and Federal taxes, after deducting depreciation and current interest, except interest on debt to be retired, as certified by Price, Waterhouse & Co., have been as follows:

Year ended Dec. 31
1925	$205,482
1926	970,839
1927	399,744

The combined earnings as shown above for the three-year period averaged nearly 3 times the annual interest requirements of $180,000 on the proposed $3,000,000 Debentures.

ASSETS: The pro-forma condensed balance sheet of the new Corporation as of December 31, 1927, prepared from the balance sheets of Frick & Lindsay Company and Frick-Reid Supply Company, as certified by Price, Waterhouse & Co. and adjusted to give effect to the issuance of $3,000,000 6% Debentures, the retirement of $3,000,000 7% Preferred Stock and other provisions of the Plan, shows total net assets equal to over $2,300 per $1,000 Debenture of which net quick assets alone amounted to over $1,800 per $1,000 Debenture.

No value is assigned in this balance sheet to the valuable good will and trade names built up by the Companies over a period of years. Furthermore, the land and buildings owned by the Companies have recently been appraised by the American Appraisal Company at a value approximately $500,000 in excess of the amount at which these assets are carried on the books.

The proposed issue of $3,000,000 Debentures will constitute the sole funded debt of the new Corporation.

SINKING FUND: A sinking fund is provided payable semi-annually in Debentures or cash on April 1 and October 1 in each year, commencing October 1, 1928, sufficient to retire $120,000 principal amount of Debentures annually. Cash sinking fund payments are to be used to purchase or call Debentures at not exceeding the redemption price in effect on the next succeeding interest date. The operation of the sinking fund will retire 60% of this issue by maturity.

All offerings are made when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the consummation of the Plan for consolidation or merger and subject to the approval of all legal proceedings in connection with the formation of the Corporation and the issue of the Debentures, by our counsel, Messrs. Hornblower, Miller & Garrison. Delivery in the first instance may be made in the form of Interim Receipts or Temporary Bonds.

Bridge Projects in Loan Very Important to All

Among the projects in the proposed people's bond issue, coming to a vote June 26, Question No. 4 may be considered the more important from a monetary view, since it carries a proposal to expend a total of $14,650,000, a sum several millions in excess of the amount carried for any other of the seven questions.

This item carrying so many millions represents bridges—thirty-three bridges, major and minor. The largest amount proposed under Question No. 4 is $6,885,000 for a bridge between McKees Rocks and the North Side, across the Ohio River. Second, in the matter of expense, is the West End-North Side Bridge, carrying $3,540,000. Next is $1,925,000 for the purchase from the city of the South Tenth Street Bridge and erecting a new structure. Fourth and last of the major projects is $900,000 for a bridge across the Youghiogheny River between Versailles and Boston. The sum of $1,400,000 is specified for the construction and reconstruction of twenty-nine minor bridges throughout the county.

The West End-North Side Bridge, if constructed, will be part of the inter-district traffic circuit of Pittsburgh, recommended and advocated by the Citizens' Committee on City Plan. In addition to being a needed means of direct communication between the districts the structure would connect, it would serve also as part of the route to divert through traffic around the more congested part of the city.

The South Tenth Street Bridge improvement would tend to facilitate the flow of traffic in central parts of Pittsburgh through the Armstrong Tunnel, of which it, in connection with Second avenue, is the southern outlet.

The McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge project would serve to cut off several miles of travel for a great deal of traffic.

Thus it will be seen that Question No. 4 is really of vital interest and one that should be given real study by all voters.

Fight Against Hay Fever

Dr. Harris, New York City's able Health Commissioner, determined to help hay fever victims, asks farmers and gardeners to fight ragweed and wherever possible substitute another crop for timothy hay.

Goldenrod and roses, you are told, do NOT cause hay fever or "rose fever."

Hay fever destroys the happiness of thousands every year; so does poison ivy. Because these affiictions don't kill they are neglected. They have caused more unhappiness than all the rattlesnakes and wolves, and should be fought, as we would fight wolves or rattlesnakes. Commissioner Harris deserves public thanks.

China's civil war is enlisting women to fight as well as men.

This lady, belonging to the Kuomintang party, trained by Russians to believe in Bolshevism, belongs to China's female "intelligentsia." Whether she has just finished shooting somebody or has been examining the weapon is not known.

In any case, a hard-working American would prefer a lady with a powder puff to this lady with the puff of powder.

READY FOR THE TAKE-OFF

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Home of Genius

WHERE does the mind reside? It has not always been believed that the brain was the place, once it was supposed to be the liver. The heart, too, has had its advocates for this honor. Some have thought the body as a whole to be the seat of intelligence. But cerebral science has long taught that the brain is the throne of the mind, and specially the fore-brain. When the fore-brain is destroyed, or cut off from connection, life may remain, but the control of consciousness is lost, and the body gives only reflex responses.

It has long been held that the mental powers depend upon the peculiar conformation of the brain, upon the intricacy of its convolutions whereby a greater quantity of the "gray matter" which covers the surface is deployed. Thus it is said that a smaller brain may be more powerful and efficient than a larger one by virtue of its superior conformation. Hitherto it has been generally understood that this relationship of mental ability to cerebral structure, rather than to mere brain size, was confirmed by the results of post-mortem study of the brains of people whose life history was known.

After all, it would seem, the pattern of the brain convolutions is not revelatory of the reach and quality of the mentality supposed once to have reigned therein. Dr. Donaldson speaks of the brain appearing under the microscope as a "crude machine." The eye of the investigator fails to detect "the subtle things which make it what it is, the individual chemistry of the tissues, the contacts between the fine nerve cells and the blood."

And yet in those unseen things Dr. Donaldson believes "lie the power, control and regulation of the brain." But we see only the crude machine without being able to discern its finer parts. "In their fundamental structure human brains are found to be remarkably alike, and the variations in the convolutions are only incidental."

* * *

So the mystery of genius is thrown back into the darkness. Neither Gall and Spurzheim, with their elaborate brain-maps showing the location of all the faculties under the bony shell of the skull, like a geological chart of subterranean lodes; nor the brain anatomists, with their dissections disclosing the curious motor centers; nor the investigators of specially selected brains bequeathed to science by their former possessors, in the hope that thereby they might afford to a future generation light on what was mysterious to themselves—the source of their talents and genius—none of these has succeeded in finding out the great secret. The mind still defies analysis, it makes no mark of usage upon its physical instruments, genius leaves no finger-prints; after it is departed we cannot even say with certainty, "Just here it did its work; these were its tools and there it sat."

Waiting and Wasting

YOU wonder how certain men make a living out of producing things which seem to you so ordinary.

You have always wanted to do something of an important nature.

You have not wanted to do things within your capabilities, many times, because you wanted to find the unusual and prove you unusual ability.

It is a fine thing to have a high goal.

But it is better to do well things as they come and let each be a stepping stone to greater things.

This idea that you can wait by the roadside for the thing you think big enough for your high aspirations is a foolish one.

Perhaps the big opportunity may never open up to you.

You are getting out of practice for work by waiting around.

Do something, and do it hard, so that you may be stronger when the big moment in your life comes.

A small thing done well is a great asset to success.

Exercise your talent for small things and then you won't find the step so long nor so difficult when you see the great thing coming.

Tomorrow

TOMORROW will be shining,
Tomorrow will be gay,
Its hours brimmed with loveliness
We may have missed today.

Tomorrow lends us courage
To face today's defeat;
Whatever pain the present holds,
Tomorrow will be sweet.

We paint it with enchantment,

Each flawless thing we plan and build
Into tomorrow goes.

From none does hope withhold it,
To none is it denied:
Tomorrow, magic day, whose dawn
Will bring dreams satisfied.

Tales that are Told

Overdone

PUDDLETON and Mudmere had met to decide supremacy at cricket, and the newly-elected captain of the Puddletonians was defraying the cost of a hot luncheon. This repast was to be served at the close of the first innings, and things looked promising for an early meal until the last two Mudmere batsmen took it into their heads to offer a sturdy resistance to the home bowling.

This fact seemed particularly disquieting to a stout man in a white apron, who stood at the entrance to the pavilion, signaling frantically to the home umpire.

"How's that?" bellowed the bowler at last, as the ball struck a batsman on the head.

"Hout!" came the triumphant reply, without a moment's hesitation.

"Out!" cried the batsman, in amazement.

"Yes," snapped the umpire, "and so's the mutton! I ain't goin' to eat cinders for nobody!"—London Tit-Bits.

Conscience

WEARILY the tramp meandered up and took off his hat to the lady of the house. She eyed him keenly.

"Look here, aren't you the man to whom I gave a good, big meal one cold, bleak February morning?" she demanded, sternly.

"I'm the man, mum," was the reply.

"Well, do you remember you promised to shovel all the snow off my sidewalk and then sneaked off without doing it?"

"Yes, mum, an' conscience smote me. That's the reason I tramped all the way back here through the blazing sun to finish the job."

Discouraged

THEY were talking about a young man who had just passed them in the street.

"Yes," said one, "he fell in love with a girl in a glove store. He bought gloves every day for a week, so to discourage his attentions she became a manicurist."

"Then he had his nails manicured every day, I suppose?" remarked the other.

"Just so. But I don't think he will worry her any more."

"Why?"

"She's found employment with a dentist."

Father in the Fashion

JESSIE had been sent to a fashionable boarding school, and after the first two weeks she signed her letters home "Jessica."

Presently she received a letter from her father, a plain but prosperous farmer. He wrote:

"Dear Jessica: I received your welcome letter. Mamaica and Tomica are quite well. Tomica has a new friend named Samica Jonesica. Aunt Maryica and Uncle Georgeica have gone to New York.— Your loving Dadica."

The Usual Way

THE rich and benevolent Mrs. Lionshield came one day to bring charity and brightness into the poor home of the widow Peterson. She began, however, with a long series of questions. Mrs. Peterson interrupted her.

"This is new to you, ma'am?" Mrs. Lionshield admitted it was.

"Then," returned Mrs. Peterson, "I'll tell you what to do. You sit down on this chair, read a chapter out of the Bible, give me a dollar, and leave!"

There's a Limit!

THE play was of the most wildly made dramatic character, but the great scene was that in which the hero confronts the sneeringly triumphant villain.

"Sir Marmaduke," he exclaimed, "you have reduced me to beggary, broken the heart of my aged mother and eloped with my wife. But beware! Don't go too far!"

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Despatch is the soul of business and nothing contributes more to despatch than method. —Chesterfield.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, June 7.—Three female theatrical stars in the same number of years have slipped quietly into oblivion. All became chronic alcoholics. In each case great patience was shown and every effort was made to curb their appetites through cures, sanitariums and such, but to no avail.

One forced audiences at three opening nights to endure the agony of watching her move through her scenes in a hiccupy, blurry haze. She would sway and fumble lines at important moments, and once at an out-of-town premier it was necessary to ring down the curtain in the middle of a rachitic speech.

Another whose success was a Rialto legend developed a penchant for, as a theatrical paper bluntly put it, "getting cock-eyed and quitting the show." At intervals that became increasingly frequent she would go on a protracted spree and would be found locked in her hotel room in a drunken stupor.

The third was less spectacular. She had been described as a congenital alcoholic, both parents reported being victims of acute alcoholism. She is said to have made a game battle to overcome her weakness and never appeared tipsy before audiences.

But she avoided engagements, drank deeper, and in the end became hopelessly unfit for professional appearance. She was what Hollywood calls "a bathroom drinker"—indulging alone and in secret. This was her sole dereliction and her character otherwise was spotless.

Broadway has been whispering for sometime of another star said to be traveling the same route, although this may be just gossip. For people so sensitive and highly strung, alcohol is more dangerous than it is to the average person.

It is but fair to chronicle that among majority of stars, both male and female, there is comparatively little drinking. Indeed a heavy percentage are abstainers. The world of excitement and glamour, in which they live, is stimulating enough. And they "think of their public."

A retired actress has made a tidy fortune in the last few years in the custom-made shirt business. She employed fetching young college girls to canvas office buildings with samples of shirtings. Those who secured 100 customers were taken into the business, and there are now 10 partners. Her net income is $30,000 a year.

Automatic service is now extended to summer fruit drinks on West Forty-second street, and an automatic ice cream soda fountain is operating across from the Winter Garden. With automatic cafes, serve-yourself suit, gown and hat shops clicking, a company has been organized to install a chain of coin-in-the-slot newsstands. The idea may spread, but it has a metallic coldness. It may appeal to moderns, but there are old-fashioned folk who want a little gossip and the human touch with a news vendor along with purchases.

A New Yorker who circled the globe four times has purchased a farm in Arkansas, where he expects to spend his remaining days. We wish him well, but venture the opinion there will come the day when he will exchange the cry of a hoot owl for the bump of a street car.

Speaking of travel, Manhattan is to have a travel theater where only movies of travel scenes will be shown.

The most frequent American ocean-crosser is Gilbert Miller, a theatrical producer. And the most frequent of the California commuters is reported to be Walter Wanger, a film executive, who has made 20 round trips to Hollywood in a year.

* * *

Walter Wanger is an example of the ironical surrounding of every man who weds a celebrated beauty. He is the husband of Justine Johnson, who sent masculine hearts pumping in the days of the Midnight Frolic. In his early 30s he is one of the high-salaried men in the film business. Yet invariably people refer to him as "Justine Johnson's husband."

The Best Medicine

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

The best general all round tonic is good cheer. It has never yet been discovered what chemical action a pleasant feeling has on the body. But it as surely stimulates the glands, purifies the blood, tones the nerves and does other beneficial things to you as do vitamines or radium or electricity.

And more thoroughly. There are certain substances in chemistry known as catalyzers. They do not unite with any other substances, but certain chemical reactions take place when they are present. Certain kinds of chemical changes will refuse to operate except when they are in the house, as it were.

Altogether cheer is the chief catalyzer of the world.

The career of Chauncey Depew, which was recently closed, was a good illustration of this and ought to supply health lecturers with a lot of ammunition.

To be sure he lived simply and although he attended thousands of banquets he knew enough not to eat too much and had given up drinking and smoking in his later years. But a lot of people do these things and still die young.

Some people say that a certain religious faith will preserve life and stave off sickness, but the data on this theory are not very satisfying.

There is no doubt, however, that a sense of humor is the best friend of the human organism. More people worry themselves to death than die in any other way.

Why worry! If a thing can be helped, help it. If it can't be helped, laugh.

People who treat of unpleasant things, write about them, talk of them and enjoy them, who love rainy days and want to see the hospitals full and like to go to see "Desire Under the Elms," and "The American Tragedy" and "The Captive," say all that stuff is real. It is actual life. And the people who are always cheerful are merely kidding themselves.

There seems to be a general impression that truth wherever you find it is disagreeable. The most common notion about God connects him with disaster of some kind or another. We say of misfortune that it is the nature of God, and when anybody is suffering trouble he is chastised of God and the like.

What about God giving us a good time?

God making the liver operate?

God giving us a good digestion? And so on?

The fact of the matter is that truth is neither pleasant nor unpleasant. Whether it be agreeable or not depends upon your attitude towards it.

Optimism and pessimism are not real. They are both attitudes toward reality, and it is a good deal better to look at things from the sunny side than from the shadowy side.

And Chauncey Depew, who lived along pleasantly until a few days before his death and lived to be ninety-four, proves this.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

BROADWAY has become unduly excited over Helen Jane's papa. Previously published reports set forth the part played by the little actress daughter of the millionaire oil man from Oklahoma, in keeping her parent from the temptations of the gay white way. They ended with the information that he had journeyed out to Woodlawn Cemetery in the gray dawn of Memorial Day to sprinkle suitable flowers on the grave of the father of the hat-check girl of a night club. Most of New York, including parts of Staten Island, has been concerned about the lack of news regarding whether or not he ever got home.

He did.

It can be told now of how he fought with a skeptical grave digger for the privilege of putting appropriately potted flowers all over the family lot of the hat-check lady.

It can be told also, of how he resumed an expensive taxicab ride to the home of the hat-check lady in Westchester and how, with most of the metropolitan police looking for him, he passed a quiet morning putting up window screens for the hat-check lady's uncle.

Helen Jane's papa was not discovered putting up screens. He was all right until some Memorial Day marchers in the Bronx complained to the traffic squad that their parade was being spoiled by an aimless taxicab that had no business in the ranks.

A mounted cop took a look inside the cab and the search for Helen Jane's papa was ended.

It was nearly 10 o'clock a. m. when the frantic Helen Jane was startled from her troubled sleep by noises in the adjoining room of their apartment. She investigated and discovered papa being led in by the hat-check lady.

Helen Jane paid no attention to the hat-check lady. The hat-check lady seemed to be merely incidental to the main plot.

She began to discuss with papa just what she thought of his conduct.

"What will the theatrical profession think of me when they hear that my father is wandering all over Manhattan Island and elsewhere, putting flowers on graves?" she inquired. "And you may not have heard about it in Oklahoma, but there is prohibition in this country. Plastered again!"

The hat-check lady had made a great success in her profession by her discretion. But at this point she found speech.

Towit:

"You'se is spuried," she said. "Your father to you is just another uri man. You'se don't appreciate a good little guy like him!"
